Sensational Statements About His Conduct—Salvation Army Colony for Swaziland—Foreign News of General Interest.

London, Aug. 17.—The rivalry between France and Germany is reaching serious lengths. This was illustrated yesterday in the exhibition of the Holy Coat of Argenteuil.

No sooner did it become known a few weeks ago that the ecclesiastical authorities of Treves, in Rhenish Prussia, were about to exhibit a garment claimed to have been worn by the Savior than the French were alive to deprive the Germans as far as possible of the honor and profit.

It appears that Argenteuil, within easy access by rail from Paris, also possesses a coat said to have belonged to Christ. Arrangements were promptly made for the exhibition of the relic.

Sunday was chosen as the opening day, several days ahead of the first public view at Treves. Great throngs of people went from Paris and other localities to see the holy vestment.

The exhibition was in every way successful, and is said to have caused proportionate chagrin at Treves, which will probably lose a multitude of expected French Catholic visitors. The preparations for the public exhibitions in Treves are going on hurriedly, and will be completed within the appointed time.

The opening of the international labor congress in Brussels was strongly socialistic. Socialists organized the congress and have the direction of its affairs and it is considered as assured fact that the action of the body will be strongely socialistic.

A great many men from English trades unions have not yet shown how they stand on the question of socialism.

A Brussels correspondent says that the delegates to the labor congress present a respectable, but on the whole, a peculiar appearance. Those from western Europe were clad, quite generally, in the attire peculiar to their calling. The French and German socialists seem to manage the congress, and its success, not as yet determined, cannot fail to have a decisive effect on the relation between socialism and labor.

The Paris "Eclair," which is not given to sensationalism, prints the following story as confirmed by unquestioned authority:

On the night following the departure of the imperial yacht, Hohenzollern, from England the crew was beaten to quarters, and were surprised to find the quarter-deck brilliantly illuminated. An altar had been erected on the deck bearing the Old and New Testaments and the kaiser stood by wearing a white chasuble with a crozier in his hand and a black and white mitre on his head. He read the most warlike passages from the testaments and invited the crew to respond. He then preached a long sermon on the duty of sovereigns to their people, the whole service lasting from 11 p. m. to 2 a. m. The crew was then piped below. At 5 a. m. the kaiser appeared on the bridge in the uniform of a high admiral, looking extremely haggard, and addressing the commander said: "Sir, retire to your cabin; I shall take charge."

The commander replied: "Sire, permit me to observe that we are in a dangerous passage and that it is advisable for your majesty's safety as well as that of the crew that he should remain in command."

The emperor responded: "Never mind; God will inspire me."

The commander bowed and retired.

The second officer remaining, the emperor angrily bade him retire, the officer respectfully protesting.

The emperor then said: "You resist, wretched creature; you trouble the spirit of God which is in me. This is the vengeance of God upon you," dealing the officer a heavy blow on the cheek.

The officer turned crimson, but remained until the emperor seized him by the throat and tried to throw him overboard.

In the struggle that followed the emperor fell and broke his knee cap. The sailors watched the scene paralyzed with fear. The occurrence was one that cannot be forgotten. The emperor, bruised with pain, his eyes started from their sockets, he foamed at the mouth. He swore terribly and, in fact, displayed all the symptoms of madness. The officers, after a brief consultation, carried him into a cabin padded with mattresses. Nobody was admitted except the doctor and the empress. Men were necessary to help restrain him until his leg was bandaged and a strait jacket was put on him. The crisis lasted three days.

A report that the German government had determined to reduce corn duties was received with rejoicing on Sunday, especially in the manufacturing districts. It proved to be premature and the reaction among the poor was heartrending. Devices have been seized by the police at Chemnitz with the legend "Bread or Blood," and evidently intended to be used in a procession. The devices were destroyed. Nearly all the German refugees are absent from London, attending the labor congress at Brussels.

A dispatch from South Africa says that the heads of the Salvation Army in that country are anxiously awaiting the arrival of General Booth. The Salvation army people have acquired a desirable site in Swaziland for the foundation of a colonial farm, on the plan suggested by General Booth, and a good portion of darkest England may be on the way there before the extreme severities of the winter. The general will arrive shortly in Capetown.

Although the bill, strongly advocated by the late Archbishop Magor, to have all child insurance money paid to undertakers, did not pass parliament this session, it has, none the less, strong advocates, and coroners throughout the united kingdom are conducting inquiries into such deaths with greater rigor than before.

There seems to be no doubt that many insured children perish through intentional neglect, rather than positive violence and the bill was intended to take away wholly the motive for such crime.

A letter from a leading socialist in Brussels says that the city is thronged with government spies and detectives from all parts of the compass, especially Russia and Germany. The various police authorities, acting no doubt under superior instructions, have sent their videocqs to see and remember the faces of the men who take the lead in the labor congress.

The Siamese government is taking active steps to resist French encroachment in the provinces of the Mekong river. The king has deputied three princes of the royal house to divide the government of the provinces in question, and a large force of troops has also been sent.

TWELVE WERE KILLED.

A Rear End Collision Near Berne To-Day.

An Express Crashes Into an Excursion Train.

A Sad Event Mars the Festivities Attending the Seven Hundredth Anniversary of the City's Formation.

Berne, Aug. 17—A terrible accident, resulting in the instant death of twelve persons and the serious injury of many others, some of whom will probably die, occurred to-day on the Jura-Simplon railway near this city.

A special excursion train which was conveying hundreds of villagers from the surrounding country to witness the fetes in connection with the seven hundredth anniversary of the foundation of the city of Berne was stopped at a siding a short distance from its destination, in order to allow the regular Paris express to pass.

The engineer of the expres, as nearly as can now be ascertained, had not been notified of the fact that the excursion was ahead of him and the conductor of the excursion train seems to have neglected to send a signalman back to protect the rear of his train while the shunt was being arranged.

The express, running at high speed, came upon the excursion train so suddenly that the engineer's efforts to check its speed and avoid disaster were unavailing.

The heavy express dashed into the rear of the excursion train, demolishing the hindmost coach and forcing itself partly through the next.

The rear coach happened to be an empty one, which was intended for passengers to be taken on at another station. The guards in charge of it were killed, but the presence of this car doubtless saved the lives of many occupants of the other coaches.

HIGHWAYMEN IN DETROIT.

A Promenading Couple Held Up—A Policeman's Good Work with His Revolver.

Detroit, Aug. 17.—An attempted highway robbery about 11 o'clock last night resulted disastrously to the two robbers, one being fatally shot and the other, it is thought, badly wounded.

At the hour named a man and woman were promenading near the Mack road. At this point there is a dense grove and the place is very dark. The couple were all unconscious of danger when suddenly two men sprang out from among the trees and halted them. One of the two men had a revolver in his hand and the other carried a wagon spoke.

"Throw up your hands and deliver up your money," cried the man carrying the revolver, at the same time thrusting the weapon near his intended victim's face. The young man grabbed the revolver and with a quick jerk wrenched it from the robber's hand. In an instant, however, he was felled to the ground by a stunning blow from the wagon spoke in the hands of the second robber, who then proceeded to choke the young woman, who screamed loudly.

Officers Tracy and Palmer, who have been on the lookout as the result of a number of reports of just such robberies, were close by and came running up, the highwayman with the revolver opening fire on them as they did so. The officers returned the fire and one of the robbers dropped in his tracks just as he was in the act of turning to run. His companion had already fled into the grove and it is believed that he, too, received a bullet. Officer Palmer had a narrow escape as a bullet cut through his trousers at the knee but did not graze the skin.

The wounded robber, who gave his name as Edwin Ganger, of this city, was taken to the hospital, where he will probably die before night. The other robber has not been captured.

THE WORK OF THE CLUBS

They Will Be a Factor in Coming Campaigns.

Democracy Is Alert from Ocean to Ocean.

Some Interesting Information That Lucas County Democrats Can Well Afford to Remember.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Mr. Lawrence Gardner, the secretary of the democratic clubs, has returned from New York where he has been attending a meeting of the executive committee of the National association.

The meeting was called mainly to hear reports of the officers of what has been done during the past two years. All the members of the committee were present with one exception.

A general convention of all the clubs is held only once in four years, and the time appointed is 60 days after the national nominating convention. From reports received it is learned that active measures have been adopted for conducting the campaign in the various states. Mr. Gardner thinks that there will be a good many candidates before the next national convention for the presidential nomination.

He considers that if Mr. Flower is elected governor of New York by a good majority that he will be a prominent candidate. The names of Senator Gorman, Gov. Campbell, Gov. Pattison, ex-Gov. Gray of Indiana, Col. Morrison of Illinois and Gov. Boies of Iowa are likely to be heard of in the convention according to Mr. Gardner's information.

If Mr. Cleveland is backed by a majority of the New York delegation Mr. Gardner believes that his nomination will be inevitable. He does not seem sanguine, however, that Mr. Cleveland can control a majority of the New York delegation.

Mr. George Hazzard, the secretary of the association of democratic clubs of the state of Washington, came on from New York with Mr. Gardner. Mr. Hazzard arrived from the west after the committee had adjourned. He, however, met a number of the members, and now he is in the city completing details for a trip of democratic speakers through the northwest and the extreme west.

It is proposed that the party leave this city September 12, going direct to Chicago and thence to St. Paul and Minneapolis and following the line of the Northern Pacific, stopping at various points, where meetings will be held and speeches made.

The party will reach Spokane Falls about September 23. At that time a convention of the state democratic clubs will be in session and distinguished visitors from the east will be given a reception.

The journey will be continued around Puguet Sound, in Oregon; thence through California, Utah and Colorado, reaching Iowa about the time the state campaign is at its height. Senator Kenna, Representative Bynum, ex-Representative McAdoo and Chauncey F. Black have decided to join the party. Other prominent democratic statesmen will probably decide to go, and during the 40 days that the party will be away they will manage to stir up a good deal of democratic enthusiasm in the section of the country through which they will pass.

Mr. Hazzard having completed the general arrangements for the trip, will leave shortly for his home. He has enlisted the interest of Mr. Gardner in this project, and Mr. Gardner will have charge of the arrangement at this end of the line. It is probable that a good deal of democratic campaign work will be done in Washington next winter.

The national and congressional committees and the headquarters of the association of democratic clubs will be side by side in a suite of rooms and the three organizations will work in harmony. Under this arrangement there will be no duplication of work, and the greatest amount of good will be accomplished with the least expense. The suite of rooms will be conveniently situated, and will be in the constant charge of a competent clerk. Mr. Gardner is thoroughly satisfied with the outlook from a democratic standpoint, and believes beyond doubt that New York, Ohio, Iowa and Massachusetts will elect democratic governors next fall, and also expects a democratic legislature in New York.

"There are 3,500 permanent clubs in the association, with an average of 160 members in each club," he said to-day. "It is only recently that we have prosecuted the work of organization in the south. We are now, however, forming clubs in that section and making their social feature quite prominent. This is done, of course, to offset the social side of the alliance movement. Our association is not a centralized movement like that proposed by Mr. Clarkson in the league of republican clubs. We have no cast-iron constitutions or by-laws to which all must subscribe, but we let each club organize in the manner that will be the most successful in the locality where it is situated."

"Will the association do any work in the approaching fall campaign?"

"Not directly. The clubs will, of course, be active, but they will be under the direction of the state committees. Everything that the association is doing now has reference to the campaign of 1892."

Mr. Gardner says that the democrats of Pennsylvania are going to make a sturdy fight this fall to elect the state auditor and other officers to be chosen in that commonwealth. He thinks that the Bardsley defalcations in Philadelphia, notorious bossism of Quay and the phariseeism of Wanamaker will have a healthy influence on the mind of the people and the democrats will stand a good chance of electing their man, notwithstanding the overwhelming republican majority that Pennsylvania has heretofore been in the habit of booming up.

A Murder Mystery Explained.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 17.—Henry Dillon, marshal of Haughville, was murdered a few months ago and no clue to the murderers could be found. Yesterday Mrs. Charles French accused her husband and Charles Hubbard of the crime and they have been arrested. Saturday night, when the woman threatened to expose her husband, he nearly killed her with a base ball bat.

$35,000 for Being Killed.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 17.—In the circuit court of Desha county the suit of Mrs. Mary Sweet, widow of John Sweet, who was killed in the wreck of a freight train last September, against the St. Louis & Iron Mountain railroad, was decided in favor of the plaintiff. The jury returned a verdict for the $35,000 asked. This is the largest amount of damages ever given against a railroad in the state.

Water From a Foul Well.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 17.—As a result of drinking water from a foul well, two persons have died and 24 are ill, a dozen of them so critically that the doctors have given up all hope of their recovery.

Expect Large Profits.

Vienna, Aug. 17.—Grain exporters anticipate large profits, owing to the rise in price of cereals and to the abundance of the Balkan harvest for both Austrian consumption and exportation.

Mill Blown Down.

Kearney, Neb., Aug. 17.—About 200 feet of the cotton mill wall was blown down by a cyclone Saturday night. Damage to the mill is estimated at $30,000.

FELL FROM HIS BALLOON.

The Third Fatal Accident Inside of Two Days.

Rome, Aug. 17.—An æronaut who made an ascent yesterday at Macerato met with a terrible death. The large crowd of people who had assembled to witness the ascent were watching the balloon sail gracefully away to the eastward when they were horror stricken to see the æronaut fall from the car and plunge rapidly downward from a dizzy height.

At the time of the accident the balloon was over the Adriatic, though the point from which it had been sent up was some miles inland. The unfortunate æronaut fell into the sea and perished, while the balloon, relieved of his weight, soared away and was speedily lost to view.

Pilgrims at the Shrine.

Auriesville, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Between 3,000 and 4,000 Catholics, principally from Troy and Albany, made a pilgrimage to the Shrine of Our Lady of Martyrs, yesterday. Religious services were held at the shrine until noon, when the party returned. The shrine bids fair to become historical, and it is yearly attracting increasing numbers to the spot made sacred to the memory of Fathers Jogues and Goufeil, missionary priests, who were slain here by Indians in 1642.

POINTER FROM SHERMAN

The Senator Has Given the Secretary a Hint,

So That He Is Able To Make Books Show a Surplus.

Much Skirmishing Being Done in Republican Ranks to Hide the Work of the Billion Dollar Congress.

Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—Secretary of the Treasury Foster arrived here last night on his way to Cape May Point to see the president. Questioned about the monetary situation, he said: "I think there is a marked improvement taking place now in the monetary situation in the country. This great grain movement is helping us wonderfully. It is not only helping us directly, but it is creating a feeling of confidence which materially assists the improvement.

"There has been a feeling of uneasiness all around until recently as to the possibility of stringency in the money market but now a much more hopeful feeling prevails in this respect and the danger seems to have passed.

"Yes, I know there is an impression abroad that the government is almost without immediate resources in the way of actual money on hand, but this impression is wrong. There is, including the $100,000,000 of gold reserve, more than $200,000,000 which is available in case of any emergency.

Without the gold reserve there is nearly $107,000,000 which could readily be made available. Of this about $53,000,000 is charged off as liabilities which are in fact merely technical liabilities. In these liabilities there is for instance the bank redemption fund, which is the fund made up of five per cent. of the bank's circulation, deposited to redeem mutilated currency.

Then there is also in this sum about $17,000,000 in the treasury, which is placed to the credit of the disbursing officers accounts, which could be used in case of an emergency.

There is also continuously outstanding checks aggregating $7,000,000 and the money which is now held for them could be made available.

Then we also have $5,000,000 postoffice money and this could be used in case of an emergency. Of course this $54,000,000 made up of these items varies from time to time, but there is practically about where the figure stands all the time, according to tables compiled from the records of the department for the past four years.

"Now, after this technical liabilities which this $54,000,000 represents are charged off there is a balance of $53,000,000 against which there is no liability, making up $107,000,000 in addition to the gold reserve of $100,000,000."

Heavy Hail Storm.

Ada, Minn., Aug. 17.—A destructive hail storm passed over here yesterday, damaging several thousand acres of growing crops. The storm covered an area of 10 miles, and in some instances whole fields of growing grain were completely destroyed.

Heavy Storm.

Burlington, Ia., Aug. 17.—A fearful rain storm swept over southwestern Iowa yesterday, causing great damage to railroads and crops. The extent of the damage is not definitely known.

SAVED FROM AWFUL DEATH.

An Epidemic of Baloon Disasters.

An Air Ship with a Wedding Party Bursts, but Forms a Parachute in Its Descent.

Denver, Col., Aug. 17.—A balloon ascension at Manhattan Beach, a summer resort near here, Sunday afternoon, came near resulting fatally for three persons. Several thousand people had assembled to witness the ascension of the mammoth air ship which was to carry beside Prof. King, a couple to be married in the basket just before the rope was cut.

The balloon shot up in the air and at a height of 8,000 feet it encountered a storm and burst. It fell for over a mile like so much lead, then, fortunately for the occupants of the car, the silk formed itself into a parachute, thus stopping the rapidity of the fall. The three fell in a corn field about seven miles from the city, but with such force that they were unconscious for several hours afterwards.

THAT FOSTER PIPE.

Not the Kind Wanted by the Gas Trustees — Manager Heston Will Investigate.

Saturday evening the natural gas trustees, with Messrs. Parsons, Jones and Greene present, held a special meeting to consider several matters of importance. The first was the extension of the contract with Parks, Foster & Co. The latter presented testimony from Mr. Cotter of the water works and others, going to show that the pipe furnished by Parks, Foster & Co. was according to contract. The trustees did not think so, however, and placed the matter in the hands of the manager and superintendent to make a report at the meeting to-night.

The matter of purchasing a large amount of pipe to be used in the construction of the city lines, was discussed in executive session. It is understood that the three members of the board present were in favor of buying the pipe, but the matter, after a long discussion, was laid over till a full meeting of the board, which will probably not be held till Thursday evening.

JUDGE LATTY'S OPINIONS

On the Great Economic and Social Questions.

The Oldest Free Trader in the State of Ohio

Still Favors Low Taxes, Honest Money and Subsidiary Coinage —Thinks Labor and Capital Should Work Together.

Defiance, August 17.—(Special)—One of the old-land marks of the Maumee valley who has been for more than half a century prominently identified with the development of Northwestern Ohio, is Judge A. S. Latty, of Defiance.

The active career of Judge Latty was contemporaneous with that of Hon. A. P. Edgerton, Hugh McCullough, P. A. Randall, and other remarkable men who were leaders in the pioneer days in the great black swamp region. But few besides Judge Latty have lived to see the tangled wilderness transformed as if by magic into a veritable garden.

Born in the west of Ireland about the time of the decline and fall of the empire of the first Napoleon, Judge Latty emigrated to America at an early age, settling first at Montreal but coming later to New York state. His residence in the latter place was very brief as in a short time young Latty turned his face to the westward and sought the forest fastness of Northwestern Ohio.

The year of his arrival in Ohio is fixed by the Judge as 1837, and at that time the entire section was an unbroken wilderness save for an occasional settlement.

He soon became prominnt in the new region by reason of his indefatigable energy and superior talents, and in a short time was a recognized leader. He was elected to several positions of trust and served for a quarter of a century as Common Pleas Judge in the district then composed of Defiance, Williams, Paulding and Putnam counties.

Since his voluntary retirement from the bench he has given himself over entirely to the management of his large landed interests in Defiance and Paulding counties. In one township in the latter county which bears his name, he at one time owned a large portion of the land, but of late years he has disposed of much of it. The closing years of his eventful career are being spent quietly at his home in Defiance. He is in many respects a most remarkable man, full of learning, of infinite research, and as clever and interesting a conversationalist as can be found in the entire country.

A Bee was accorded an interview with the judge recently, and although rapidly nearing his fourth score year, he is enjoying the best of health, a typical pioneer of the great republic.

"It is not often that I talk on political questions," said he, in response to a request for his opinion on the various social and economic problems now before the people for solution. "I believe in allowing the politicians the privilege of discussing politics, and I am no politician."

"What do you think, Judge, of the present social conditions of the country?"

"I can see trouble ahead and predict much of it within the next 15 years. Our social fabric is now tottering on its foundations by reason of the rapid changes taking place. Our population a few years ago traceable to three or four national parentages, may now be traced to four times that many. It is becoming more heterogenious year after year, and instead of adjusting itself to the wants and desires of two or three classes, the government must now fit thrice that many. The country is growing very large and the discordant elements of Europe are attracted hither quite naturally and their coming, grave mistake as it is for us, is attended with difficulty.

"The great conflict coming will be between labor and capital. Neither is satisfied with what it seemes, and each is encroaching upon the rights of the

"I do not believe that capital should combine against labor, nor would I have labor conspire against capital. These two elements in our fabric are dependent upon each other, and need each other's aid and assistance, therefore the greatest amity should exist. This theory of Henry George and other men like him—the possessors of socialistic tendencies—is all wrong. I used to discuss the theory 40 years ago, but dropped it as improbable and absurd. This thing of dividing up the wealth of the country is but a foolish dream. Years ago I was wont to discuss this plan with a friend of mine. I said 'S—, this would not do. Look at your hedge. You trim it down perfectly level, yet in a few weeks you find one or two shoots grown up far above the others. You trim your apple trees, yet in a short time you will see water sprouts growing on the limbs higher than the tree itself, a tree upon a tree. So in life. The more provident and industrious forge ahead of the improvident and slothful, and in a short time you will find the wealth of the country again concentrating. What would you do then?' I said to him.

"'Divide often,' replied he.

"This was his theory and is just as absurd as those advanced to-day."

"What views do you hold on the tariff question?"

"The same ones I have always entertained. I believe in free trade relations with every civilized nation on the globe. When we have that we will become as prosperous as we are entitled to be by reason of our unsurpassed resources. I believe I am the oldest free trader in Ohio. At a representative convention held in 1845 in this district then composed of Defiance, Williams, Paulding, Van Wert and I think Putnam counties, I introduced the following resolution, which I clearly remember:

"Resolved, That we favor free and unrestricted trade with all nations, direct taxation and the adoption of the Wilmot proviso, so-called. After I had introduced that resolutiaon A. P. Edgerton turned to me and said:

"'Latty, you have accomplished one thing: you are the father of free trade in Ohio.'

"What effect would a low tariff, or free trade, have on the commerce of the country?"

"The most wonderful effect imaginable. Our maritime interests would spring forward with renewed impetus and soon the United States would float more merchantmen than any nation on earth. Why, the present system is most iniquitous and wicked. Ships going across the ocean now with our products most generally return in ballast without cargoes.

"Just to illustrate: Years ago we used to load our corn and wheat on pirogues here at Defiance, and float them down to Providence, at the head of the Maumee Rapids, where we would exchange the grain for sugar, tobacco, clothing and the other necessities of life, which we would bring back with us. Suppose that a custom house should have been established here at Defiance, and when the goods arrived we should have been compelled to pay a tax on the goods for the privilege of bringing them home? Don't you see how untenable and malicious the system is?

"Protection is nothing more than class legislation intended for the benefit of the manufacturer, and the people are the sufferers. It is a bar to our national prosperity."

"What do you think of the income tax in the present democratic platform?"

"If it favors the taxation of all property it is right. One of the sections in the Ohio constitution of '51 was right on that point. It provided that all property should be appraised at its true value in money. What is the object of taxation? It is for the better protection of society and of the rights of the individual. If Jones, who is worth a million, enjoys the same rights as Brown, who is worth but a thousand dollars, Jones ought to pay a thousand times as much for taxes as Brown does. That is true democratic doctrine, is fair and ought to be the law."

"What about free silver coinage?"

"I have always thought that we ought to have a subsidiary coin, and am considerable of a bi-metalist. The trouble in this country is not about a scarcity of money. There is where alliance people are laboring under a delusion. If a man has anything to sell he can get money for it, and if he has not, he can't. Money is only a medium of exchange and if a man has nothing to exchange, what is it to him whether there is a billion or four billion dollars of the exchange in circulation?

"People, if they want money, must produce something to exchange for it. I believe if we have dollars in having honest dollars, and not fraudulent ones like this one, which, while containing but a fraction over 70 cents' worth of silver, is said to be worth 100 cents, and bears the words, 'In God we trust' across its face.

"Give us honest money, and freer trade relations, and I am of the opinion that the social problems will in a short time become their own analyzers."

ON LOCAL RAILROADS.

The Earnings Are All Showing an Increase.

The Toledo & Walholding Valley & Ohio.

Interesting Information of All Kinds Gleaned on the Roads in This Vicinity.

Business is picking up on all the roads entering Toledo. A month or so ago the earnings on some lines showed a decrease when compared with last year. However of late every week shows an increase on every road. Some of the earnings are as follows:

The Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City railroad earned $45,150 during the second week in August, 1891. Compared with the earnings of the same period of last year, $32,037, this shows an increase of $13,113.

The earnings of the Toledo & Ohio Central for the second week of the present month were $23,448, an increase of $4,102.

The earnings of the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad for the first week in August, 1891, amounted to $25,564, campared with the same week of last year. This shows an increase of $4,191.

The earnings of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw for the last week in July were $19,579. The earnings for the same period of 1890 were $22,415. This shows a decrease of $2,836 for the week mentioned of the present year.

There was an increase of $5.7 in the earnings of the Flint & Pere Marquette railroad for the last week in July 1891, compared with the previous year. The earnings amounted to $68,737.

The earnings of the Toledo, Columbus & Cincinnati road for the second week in August amounted to $6 645, an increase of $1,535 compared with the same week last year.

Wouldn't Let Him Go.

President M. D. Woodford, of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad so appreciated the services of E. O. McCormick, general passenger agent of the road, that when the Big Four and Chesapeake & Ohio lines offered him $5,000 a year, an increase of $1,400 over what he was getting the C., H. & D. immediately met the raise and kept him.

Toledo, Ohio & Northern.

At a meeting of the directors of the Toledo, Ohio & Northern railroad held recently, it was decided to begin work at once on the line from Fayette, Fulton county, Ohio, through Williams county, Ohio, and Steuben and Lagrange counties, Indiana, to Shipshewana. This company was formed in the interests of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, by which its bonds will be guaranteed.

Basis of Rates on Ice.

Circulars 1150 and 1175, issued by the Central Traffic association during May and June, authorized minimum rates for ice per net ton in the absence of authorized rates to the contrary, not less than the basis established on iron and steel rails per gross ton in the Central Traffic association circular No. 1050 amendments.

Circular No. 1050 and amendments having been abrogated, notice is hereby given that the rates of circular No. 1208 only, may, on and after September 1, proximo, and thereafter until further notice, be applied on ice per net ton between points in the territory of this association in the absence of authorized rates to the contrary, it being understood that rates named in C. T. A. circular No. 1058, with subsequent additions, will be continued in effect. This basis does not apply to points in Illinois reached exclusively by lines members of the Western Freight association, their assent not having been received.

The Toledo & Walholding.

Up to date over sixty bids have been received by the Toledo, Walholding Valley & Ohio Railroad company for the construction of the road from Londenville to Coshocton, O. It will take some time for Engineer J. A. Hanlon to decide where to place the contracts. Bids are still being received for the iron ties and bridge timber. This road is the result of the consolidation of the division of the Pennsylvania, entering Toledo, with the Walholding Valley railroad, unbuilt.

Sparks Along Many Lines.

Business is picking up on all local lines.

President S. R. Callaway of the Clover Leaf is in the east.

Superintendent W. R. Woodford, of the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, is in Detroit.

E. J. Reulbach, secretary of the Peninsular Car company, of Detroit, is in town to-day.

Division Freight Agent J. M. Osborn of the Wabash, went down the C. H. V. & T. this morning.

Surveys are being made for an extension of the Ohio Valley road from Princeton, Ky., to Hopkinsville.

Traveling Passenger agent John T. Gamble of the Toledo & Ohio Central is at Bowling Green to-day.

General Passenger Agent J. M. Hall, of the Wheeling & Lake Erie, is expected home from Detroit to-morrow.

L. C. Morris, general agent of the Struter-Amet Weighing and Recording company, is in town from Chicago.

Grading and tracklaying have been resumed on the Findlay, Fort Wayne & Western, between Ottawa, O., and Fort Wayne.

The surgeons on the Pennsylvania lines are going to organize what will be known as the Pennsylvania Railroad Surgical Society.

The freight committee has authorized a rate of $1 per ton on brick and ice from Tiffin to Massillon and $1.10 per ton from Tiffin to Canton.

All roads entering Toledo will run cheap excursions to the city Friday on the occasion of the parade of the Patriarch Militant on that day.

F. E. House, formerly trainmaster of the C., M. & St. P., at Chillicothe, Mo., has accepted a position with the engineering corps of the Lake Shore.

The Wheeling & Lake Erie has not yet settled how an entrance will be made into Wheeling. Some definite arrangement will be made before the snow flies.

Dr. J. W. Wright, oculist of the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo railroad, has been elected professor of ophthalmology in the Ohio Medical University.

The Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City railroad will make a rate of 50 cents for the round trip to the meeting of the Pioneers of the Maumee Valley, at Waterville, August 20.

The office of Agent E. E. Gerkins, of the Michigan Central in the produce exchange, have been enlarged, and Mr. Gerkins occupies a spacious handsomely furnished room in the rear of the two front offices.

S. Burk, formerly vice president of the Kanawha & Michigan railroad, has been elected president, with headquarters in New York. N. Robinson has been appointed vice president, with office in New York.

The Michigan Central will run special trains to the Vienna races from Toledo, August 18 to 21, leaving here at 12:30 o'clock. Some prominent Toledo horsemen guaranteed enough tusiness to make the trains pay.

The Wheeling & Lake Erie has authorized a rate of one fare for the round trip to the encampment of the Ninth regiment K. of P., at Huron, August 12 and 13, and to the Friends' society, at Mt. Pleasant, August 26-27.

Toledo passenger agents were notified to-day that the Northern Pacific, although it allowed stop over privileges at Spokane and points west, baggage cannot be checked short of final destination. Several law suits have resulted from disregarding this rule.

STILL UNSETTLED.

Matters of Difference Between the Robisons and Their Men.

The electric street car men had a red-hot session Saturday night. The word had been passed around during the afternoon that matters of special importance would come up, and therefore almost every member of the union was on hand. President Wall, a little after midnight, called the meeting to order and the hall was crowded, and, notwithstanding the warmth of the weather, almost every one remained throughout the long session.

The principal matter on hand was the discussion of the grievances of the Robison men. It was alleged that old men were being discharged and new men, said to be secured from Cleveland especially, put on in their places. Instances were given where this was done.

There was a sentiment in favor of the renewal of the old trouble, and if some of the members had had their way there would have been no cars running on the Robison lines yesterday. As it was, however, cooler heads and sounder judgment prevailed.

As a result a committee was appointed to wait on the Messrs. Robison relative to the matter up to noon today the committee had not called, but it is understood that the conference will be held this afternoon, at which it is to be hoped the matter will be amicably settled. The members of the committee said that they knew it for a fact that men had been brought here from Cleveland to take the places of the men who had been discharged or who would be discharged.

THE MACKINAW CASE

Comes Up Again in the U. S. Court.

The C., H. & D. Alleged To Be In a Dicker with Mackinaw Directors—Some Interesting Charges.

This morning there was filed in the U. S. district court an intervening petition in the case entitled The Central Trust Co. v. The Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad Co. The petitioner is Chas. P. Paterson, of Lenawee county, Mich. He alleges among other things that he recovered judgment against the Mackinaw company, in the sum of $5,595 in February, 1888, and he asks protection to the amount of this judgment. The petition, he says, is filed in behalf of all the unsecured creditors of said Mackinaw Co.

It is averred that Geo. F. Stone holds 2,500 of preferred stock, J. Kennedy Tod 2,280 shares, Geo. F. Sheldon 4,329 shares and W. H. Brown 5,800 shares, and the petitioner avers and charges that nothing was ever paid to said company either by said directors (the parties named) or anyone else for shares of stock so held by them."

It is further charged that there are other unsecured debts amounting to $100,000 standing against the company.

The most important part of the petition is the charge that the said directors have entered into a compact with the C., H. & D. "whereby it is provided that the property of the said Mackinaw company will be sold under the decree herein and the property bought in by a reorganization committee therein provided for, and that thereafter another corporation shall be formed to take possession of said property and "thereupon said new corporation shall issue a certain number of bonds for the purpose of taking up the outstanding bonds of said Mackinaw company—said contract provides for and secures the payment to the said directors of about the sum of $240,000.

The petitioners claim no provision was made in the contract for the payment of other unsecured debts and the claimants therefore ask the intervention and protection of the court.

BEER COMES HIGH

At $75 a Keg—The Amount a Norwalk Man Pays.

This morning Collector Waldorf socked it onto John Lieber, of Norwalk, to the extent of $75 for selling a neighbor a keg of beer.

Under the law a saloonkeeper is not allowed to sell over five gallons to any one person. When he sells over this amount he becomes a wholesaler and liable to the revenue tax of $50 a year.

Lieber failed to pay this tax and therefore was fined the 50 per cent. penalty, making the dose of $75, which he paid.

There is a similar case pending from Vickery, O., but the defendant claims he but loaned the beer and proposes fighting it in the courts.

TOM REED FAVORS MILLS

Says the Texan Is a Sincere Antagonist.

Europe as Compared to Uncle Sam's Country.

Italy's King Has Not the Power of America's President—The French Republic a Fixture.

Portland, Me., Aug. 17.—Hon. Thomas B. Reed made a notable speech at a reception tendered him by the Portland club.

Mr. Reed was introduced by Hon. Henry B. Cleaves, president of the club, and was received with great enthusiasm. He spoke as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT, GENTLEMEN OF THE PORTLAND CLUB AND FELLOW CITIZENS: Had I fully appreciated the extent and cordiality of your welcome, perhaps I should have felt it my duty to have come here with a speech in my pocket instead of in my mind, for there it is, if it exists at all.

I will not say to you as it has become quite the custom lately to say, that I have come back from abroad more of an American than I ever was before, and I will not say so for two reasons.

In the first place, so many Americans go abroad nowadays and come back in that condition that America is getting to be most too patriotic a country to live in (laughter); and, in the second place, I think you will all do me the justice to believe that when I went away I was sufficiently American not to have any margin upon which to increase in that direction. (Laughter and applause.)

Your chairman has said that this is a beautiful landscape, and if I were disposed to in any way praise the countries that I have seen, I should hardly dare speak of their beauties on a spot where the sky, the sea and the shore blend themselves in a picture of more wonderful beauty than the human eye ever looked upon anywhere else on the face of the earth. (Applause.)

While we surpass other nations in extent of territory, in wondrous scenery and enterprise, we are not to-day so far ahead of them as we used to be in

Devotion to Human Liberty.

Everywhere in the world the love of liberty has increased; everywhere in the world the standard has been lifted higher and higher, until, in the most of Europe, it reaches a point almost equal to our own.

In Italy the king has not the power of an American president. In France a great republic has taken root in that soil so deeply that I believe the storms of time will beat against it in vain. Permanent republicanism is the rule of France.

In England the manifestations of the public will are full, sufficient and conclusive, and if there is anything we now need to bestir ourselves about it is to give this country once again the extremely advanced position which it formerly occupied in favor of human liberty.

In its recognition of manhood as such, we were the pioneer nation; we were the people who first determined that there was safety in the rule of the people.

And yet we, ourselves, were very much afraid of the results.

It was a new experiment when, 100 years ago, our ancestors began to entrust all the people of the country with the power of the whole country, and there was great fear lest disaster should come to the nation on account of it."

In an interview Mr. Reed said relative to the fifty-first congress:

"No, sir; we never lost a trick in 'the whole game,'" and he slapped his chubby hands upon the arms of a big armchair in which he sat or rather sprawled after the manner of Talleyrand in the well-known picture.

"Not a trick. Play whist?"

"Yes? Then you understand what it means to take the 13 tricks. Well, that's what we did. Nothing got away from us."

"Do you expect to see the next speaker play the same game?"

"I hope so. If the game of politics is worth joining in at all, it should be played with the best skill and judgment that one possesses.

"It is business, all business. How about the speakership? You see, I've been away?"

"Crisp and McMillan show strongest on the surface at present," answered the correspondent. "They are both working hard, through their friends, pledging votes."

"And what about Mills?"

"He's keeping very quiet—has been hiding down at a small Asbury Park hotel for some time. Nobody can find out what Mills is doing, but the friends of the other two men insist that

He Isn't In the Hunt."

"I am sorry for that," was the thoughtful reply.

"I like Mills. He is a man of sincere convictions. I always found him a fair opponent—though I did have to 'call him down' once, when he and Rogers, of Arkansas, got to catawaumpussing about the floor of the house one afternoon."

"That's a new word, Mr. Reed," said the correspondent. "Did you find that at Herculaneum? But its meaning is evident. You suggest it as synonymous for filibustering?"

"Not exactly," replied the ex-speaker, seriously.

Then, turning his head, he called twice, "Anthony! Anthony!"

The butler didn't come, but a large maltese cat skipped into the room, landed on the big man's knee, then jumped to his shoulder and skipped down into the seat behind his master, taking a long chance of being converted into a sandwich between the chair and its occupant.

A word of command sufficed to extricate the cunning feline, however.

To put it tersely, the Maltese "catawumpussed" the convention for several minutes. But the occasion afforded time to take a good look at the ex-speaker, by some people irreverently called "the czar."

He had been encountered a few minutes before on the street not far from the corner where stands his house.

He greeted the stranger to Portland warmly. It seemed very natural—quite like in 1886, when the big man was plain "Tom Reed," and when the writer used to walk down the avenue from the Capitol with him, and listen to the lament of the congressman, because he couldn't get a bicycle strong enough to carry him. That seemed his only sorrow in those days.

The house is a neat red brick. The door opens into a wide hall, at the right of which is a large parlor, and behind it the library.

At a glance one would know that it was that the lounging room of a studious lover of literature.

Just as he had tossed his straw hat upon the bench in the hall, the ex-speaker flung himself in a gargantuan chair. He shook his locks, passed his fingers through them, as if to comb out the balls lodged there during the great campaign at the House.

His light blue flannel shirt was unbuttoned at the neck, and as he threw his head back into the cushioned chair his face glowed with the bronze of Vesuvius, and the rippling waves at Portici or Sorrento again sparkled in his eyes.

The picture of Talleyrand in his chair constantly recurred to me, as I have said, though the men haven't a single trait in common, save perhaps genius.

A cry of "rats" in the street took Anthony by way of a side window, and the conversation was renewed.

"To explain," began Mr. Reed, after the catwaumpussed, just as naturally as if he had only

Halted to Take Breath.

"Filibustering in 1880 may have been all right, but in 1890 it had developed into absolute obstruction.

"Such methods always outgrow the intent and purpose for which they were created.

Familiarity with men develops unexpected traits. The slightest advance beyond or invasion, invested for constitutional rights is a dangerous step, not in itself, perhaps, but because of what it may lead to.

"This very language was applied to me time and again. I know, but God bless me I was only trying to hold down a father turbulent and numerous minority to the bedrock of parliamentary forms from which similarly situated, minorities had been allowed to slip in the past.

"I was simply 'holdin' 'er nose agin the shore'—if the metaphor isn't too strained. And I did it.

"Now, I say, let Crisp or McMillan or Mills do the same thing.

"If the next speaker has the 'sand' he'll make us walk the chalked line.

"Which of these men would you prefer?"

"I am on good terms with all of them," was the reply.

"Personally, without any disrespect to either of the other two, I would be glad to have

Mills the Next Speaker.

He has a capacity for the place, is a good parliamentarian, and as I said before, is a sincere and frank antagonist.

"Crisp I have always found a quick, ready man. Last session, when I was in the speaker's chair, he probed against myself and did it very cleverly. He was O. K. It was good politics."

"How did you parry the thrust?"

"Parry nothing," exclaimed the ex-speaker, laughing until the fat covered up his eyes as the crust of a hot cross-bun engulfs the raisins on its surface.

"I never said a word. I couldn't afford, unofficially, to notice a remark made by one Reed, a member from Maine, in a previous session of congress. Don't you see the point?" with a smile. "I treated the matter as I would have done had another man's language in a previous congress been quoted in his absence.

"But I could have answered it, and can yet if I am ever asked. Yes; looks like a lively session ahead."

"You enjoyed your trip abroad?"

"Very much, indeed. I didn't try to do too much. I simply 'stuck to' England, Holland, France and Italy. There's lots of Europe for me to see yet."

FARM PRODUCTS.

A Bright Year for the Men Who Till the Soil.

A Review of the Year's Harvest, Which Will Prove of Interest to City as Well as Country.

New York, Aug. 17.—Farm profits will be $1,000,000,000 more this year in the United States than they have been during the recent years of depression. At least this is the estimate put forward by the American Agriculturist in its annual review of the harvests.

On the basis of present prospects this authority estimates the corn crop of 1891 at 2,000,000,000 bushels; wheat, 500,000,000 bushels, and oats at 622,000,000 bushels, against 1,500,400 and 524,000,000 bushels respectively in 1890, and 1,700,445 and 578,000,000 bushels as the average for the preceding 11 years.

This makes the total prospective crop of corn, wheat and oats 3,122,000,000 bushels, or 28.8 per cent. greater than last year, and 14.7 per cent over the average of the preceding 11 years.

The American Agriculturalist believes that unless unexpected influences wholly change the current of events the value of corn on the farm will average in December fully 50 cents a bushel, wheat $1 per bushel, and oats at least 40 cents.

On this basis the value of the corn crop to the farmers will be $1,000,000,000, wheat $5,000,000, and oats $250,000,000, or a total of $1,750,000,000. This is $450,000,000 more than the value of these crops in 1890 and $625,000,000 more than the value of the average of these crops from 1880 to 1890, inclusive.

Cotton and rice will command better prices than last season. Cattle are worth one-third more than 18 months ago, with other live stock in proportion.

Tobacco is advancing heavily for cigar leaf (contracts being made for the crop in the field at an advance of 15 to 50 per cent. over last year), hops are firm at good prices, winter fruit will command large values, and all vegetables are yielding fairly, with every indication of a remunerative market.

The export outlook was never better; immensely increased sums will be sent to the United States for our produce. Ulterior influences may, of course, interfere with this brilliant prospect, but we confess we are beginning to share more fully the hopes of certain well-informed, but conservative agriculturists, who predict better profits for the farmers of the United States during the next five years than ever before.

The American Agriculturist says there will be no return of "war" prices, but the money received above expenses will go further and enable the farmer to get more value out of his profits than at any previous period.

A FARMER ON THE TARIFF.

North Dakota Not Pleased with the Tariff.

The Low Price of Wool Is What Bothers Him Most—The Sugar Subsidy Is Another Bone of Contention.

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 17.—T. K. Long is a republican farmer in this state. In a long talk on the tariff he is quoted as follows:

While many of the provisions of the McKinley bill are improvements on the law as it existed prior to the recent session of congress, the new tariff has in not a few respects been disappointing to the farmers of North Dakota and Minnesota.

The western part of North Dakota is distinctively a wool-growing country, and the fact that the price of wool has been gradually falling under the operation of the new law does not contribute largely to enthuse North Dakota farmers in favor of McKinley protection.

The fact, doubtless, is that manufacturers find it impossible to manufacture a high grade of cloth from purely native wools, and consequently the increased price demanded from the manufacturer for fine grades of imported wools necessary to mix with the native wools has tended to lessen the demand for home-grown fleeces, the amount of native wools consumed in the manufacture of certain standard fabrics being proportionately decreased to correspond with the amount of finer imported wools consumed.

Among the wheat farmers there is a constant growing demand for free binding twine. In so far as the McKinley bill has furnished cheaper twine the farmer praises it; but in so far as it has failed to give him the cheapest twine, he condemns it.

Another objectionable feature of the new tariff is the sugar clause. The northwestern farmer is loath to believe that the sugar planter has any better right to a bonus from the government than the wheat planter. "If," say our farmers, "the maple sugar producer of Vermont and the cane-sugar grower of Louisiana are entitled to a subsidy on sugar, why should we receive a subsidy on wheat, corn, potatoes and wool? What is fair for Vermont and Louisiana ought to be fair for Dakota, and we either want the subsidy list to be extended or we want it abolished."

The foregoing are principally local considerations, and while they are entitled to full respect as such they must not be given precedence over the more important considerations of the greatest good to the greatest number as viewed from a national standpoint.

Sam Is For Cleveland.

New York, Aug. 17—The Rev. Sam Jones discoursed on politics, religion and other topics at Prohibition park, Port Richmond, L. I., to a large audience. He declared that Grover Cleveland was the bravest president the United States ever had and that his backbone was as large as Harrison's hat.

Approves the Exhibition.

Rome, Aug. 17.—In a letter to the bishop of Treves the pope approves the exhibition of the holy coat as laudable and opportune, and promises indulgences to pilgrims.

FOOLED THE DEPARTMENT

How Mrs. Gougar Circumvented Blaine's Clerks.

As a Prohibitionist She Could Get No Information,

But as a "Brewer" the Whole Republican Machine Was Placed at Her Feet.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—During Secretary Blaine's absence his subordinates in the department of state are accused of shortcomings by temperance people, who claim to have documents to prove that the administration is ashamed of the position it holds in regard to certain questions. Those documents, too, will be used with effect during the Ohio campaign, and as much political capital as possible will be made out of them.

The accusers are Col. John Sobieski, the well-known Good Templar orator; Mrs. Helen Gougar, of Lafayette, Ind.; John P. St. John, the prohibitionist, and Dr. Harrison, the temperance lecturer. Each one of the foregoing desired to secure statistics from the state department regarding the introduction of malt liquors into the Latin-American countries. The reports of the American consuls in the various countries contain this information and copies of those reports were asked for by letter.

The communications were addressed to Secretary Blaine, but as he was ill at Bar Harbor at the time, the correspondence was opened by Assistant Secretary Wharton, and in autograph letters he briefly replied to the temperance people that "such reports were not furnished to private individuals."

"We men folk gave up the idea of securing the desired information said Col. Sobieski when at the Palmer house today, "but not so with Mrs. Gougar. When a shrewd woman wants anything she generally gets it, and the irresistible Helen didn't stop when she received a polite note from Mr. Wharton. She wrote again to Mr. Wharton, informing him that the information she sought was public property, and she demanded the consul's reports, or rather copies of them. To this letter Mrs. Gougar received no reply. Then the Indiana lady resorted to a little strategy. She said to her husband: 'I want you to write to the state department and ask the officials there to send those consul reports. Sign to the letter the name of some German, giving his name and business as a malster and brewer.

"'You can't fool those people like that, Helen,' said Mr. Gougar.

"The lady, however, prevailed upon her husband to write the letter, and the request for the reports was signed like the following:

"Jacob Detzhorner, Malster and Brewer, No. 176 Lafayette avenue, Lafayette, Ind."

"No. 176 Lafayette avenue," explained Mr. Sobieski, "is the street number of Mrs. Gougar's residence. By return mail a large official document came to Mrs. Gougar's home and inclosed were the consuls' reports and also another autograph letter from Mr. Wharton, saying he was only too glad to extend any favors to Mr. Detzhorner that were in his power.

"St. John, Harrison and I on learning of the success of Helen—Helen Blazes—as some people call her, resorted to the same ruse, and are now in the possession of the statistics sent by the man who positively refused to send them to us.

"Think of it! Assistant Secretary Wharton would not send the reports to temperance orators, but deliberately told a falsehood to them, and subsequently unknowingly sent just what was wanted, and which he had no right to keep from us. When Mrs. Gougar follows McKinley through Ohio she will tell how the state department discriminates in its treatmen toward the reputable and disreputable element, and it will not reflect with credit upon Mr. Blaine or the administration. Mr. Blaine, though, I am certain is not aware of the conduct of his assistant, and when he does hear of it there will be a merry row and some explanations demanded. Mr. Wharton's refusal to furnish the reports is an indication that the administraion or the republican party is ashamed of its own record on the liquor question. Already Mrs. Gougar has used the Wharton correspondence in her lectures, for I heard her speak for a half hour on the subject at a large gathering at a Good Templar camp meeting at Crystal Lake, Ill., last week.

"When Mr. Wharton hears of the way he has been duped by a woman he won't jump up in the air and kick his heels together for joy."

Implements of War.

New York, Aug. 17.—Advices from Cartagena, United States of Colombia, state that a dispatch has been received there from Curacoa, of the Dutch Antilles, announcing the seizure, by the government authorities of the colony of Curacoa, of a cargo of munitions of war destined for Hayti.

Thorndyke-Sherman.

Milwaukee, Aug. 17.—The engagement is announced of Dr. Paul Thorndyke, formerly of this city, but now of Boston, to Miss Rachel Sherman, daughter of the late General W. T. Sherman. The young people met while in Europe.

Houk's Big Majority.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 17.—The congressional committee met and canvassed the returns of Saturday's election. The official figures are: Houk, 13,285; Woodruff, 6,057. Houk's majority, 9,228.

Damaged by Fire.

Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—The building at Mascher and Somerset streets, occupied by various firms, was damaged with its contents $15,000 by fire last night.

Charged With Bribery.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 17.—James Hurley has been arrested, charged with attempting to bribe Alderman Wood during the recent police troubles.

Fell From a Precipice.

Vienna, Aug. 17.—Wilhelm Bahr, a citizen of Hamburg, has been killed by a fall from a precipice in the Tyrol. The body was recovered.

Campbell Will Be There.

Tiffin, Aug. 17.—(Special)—Gov. Campbell will attend the annual picnic of the pioneers of Crawford, Seneca and Wyandot counties at Melmore Sept. 5.

Killed by an Accident.

West Fulton, O., Aug. 17.—Joseph F. Roth, a well-to-do farmer, was killed Friday by having a load of lumber overturned on him.

Grocers Complain.

Respectable grocers are much incensed at the disreputable practices resorted to by a baking powder concern to introduce its goods in this market. It employs a lot of cheap and incompetent people to go around and make what they call "tests" of baking powders, which simply mean condemning every kind except the one they peddle. So ignorant and unprincipled are these parties that where two samples from the same package have been given them they have pronounced one very good and the other very bad. They indiscriminately condemn the best known goods of the very highest reputation which in any way compete with their own. All the high class grocers are dealing largely, and have been for years, in the baking powders condemned by these itinerants, and they resent the accusation that they are selling impure and adulterated goods, especially as they know it to be untrue and made for purely mercenary purposes.

An evidence of the fraudulent intent of these parties exists in the fact that in several instances they have been given their own baking powder to examine, when, supposing it to be another they have unhesitatingly condemned it as adulterated.

Methods of this kind indicate both ignorance of the first principles of business and absence of either honor or morality, and will disgust consumers as well as dealers.

THE NEW YORK ROW.

An Able-Bodied Split in the Republican Party.

Elmira, Aug. 17.—At the convention here Saturday the anti-Flood or Fassett men held their convention in the hall. Abner L. Wright was made chairman. There was no trouble of any kind and delegates were elected without opposition. The convention conceded 27 seats to the Flood men, but they did not appear.

The Flood men met at 2 o'clock and adopted resolutions declaring their independence. The resolutions denounce Collector Fassett as a leader of a ring controlled by Thomas Platt and that party should be managed for the public good and not for the benefit of a single man. The resolutions conclude as follows:

"We pledge ourselves to support the republican ticket, and while we rejoice with Mr. Fassett's friends in his promotion to the responsible and honorable position of collector of the greatest port on the continent, at the same time we cannot refrain from expressing our admiration for his predecessor. Col. Erhardt, who refused longer to hold that office because an irresponsible political boss was permitted to interfere with his appointments and the general conduct of his office."

President Harrison's administration was commended.

Some very bitter speeches were made by the delegates, and Platts was vigorously hissed.

Delegates were elected to the state convention and the senatorial convention.

GUIDED BY A WOMAN.

How a Mountain Still Was Discovered.

Miles and Miles Through a Rocky Country.

A Bare-Footed Girl Led the Way and the Trip Was Very Successful in All Respects.

Louisville, Aug. 17.—A notorious and long sought for moonshine still in Tennessee was destroyed by revenue raiders recently, a buxom girl leading the officers. She rode a hundred miles by night and then led the raiders on foot eight miles over a rough mountain side. She will be liberally rewarded by the government. Her name is withheld by the officers for fear of enmity that might occur in her section should she become known, but they speak loudly of her courage and endurance.

Away over in Jahasan county, near the North Carolina line, in the most dreary part of the Iron Mountains, where the law has been defied for years, John and Steward operated a large distillery. Gallon after gallon of whisky was made and sold. The revenue officers have tried for years to locate the still without success. The people of the country adjoining seemed to be in sympathy with the moonshiners, and the revenue officers could not find the road to the still, much less secure the services of a guide.

After much worry and several fruitless attempts, Deputy Revenue Collector C. C. Spears found a person who would take him to the still. It was a hazel-eyed girl with a face as brown as a berry. Her hair was unkempt and flew behind her in the wind. She was withal, a typical mountaineer. Her arms were sunburned, and so were her feet, for, like Maud Muller, she was unencumbered by shoes or stockings.

When all was ready she met the raiders many miles from the still that she might not be known. She was afraid of assassination in the event it was learned she was the informer. The raid was made by night. Under cover of darkness they started out from the railway station on horseback.

There was no side-saddle for the girl, but she needed none. These are unknown to the natives of the Tennessee mountains, but all the women are expert horsewomen. Springing lightly into the saddle, the girl led the way, the horses making their way over the deserted road in a swinging gallop.

Before daylight began to break the party had covered 55 miles, or thereabouts, and were in the mountains. A stop was made for breakfast at a house where the girl was acquainted, and where she knew no questions would be asked as to who the riders were. The day was spent in sleeping and laying low, so that passers-by might not suspect anything.

Travel in the mountains ceases early, and the second night the party was enabled to get an early start. Before the sun had fairly hidden itself behind a mountain in the west the party were in the saddle, making their way along a road that was passable enough in good weather. Consequently they made good time, and darkness found them well on their way.

By midnight the road had grown narrower and rougher. It was up and down and very crooked. A few moments later the girl led the way from the road to a smaller and much wilder one. The horses were slowed down to a trot, and the road was at places almost impassable.

After they had gone about forty miles, the road—if it still could be called a road—ended abruptly at a dilapidated and deserted cabin.

"We must dismount here," said the girl. "It is eight miles to the still, and there is no road on which the horses can travel."

Everyone dismounted and the horses were led into the brush. One man was left to guard them and the barefooted girl led the way up the mountain for the others. It was then nearly 1 o'clock.

The way was a hard one, and progress was slow. Sometimes there was a path and sometimes there wasn't. But the girl knew where she was going, and kept up the spirits of the raiders by encouraging remarks from time to time. It was almost at the mountain top, in the roughest kind of country where the still was located. It was reached a little before 4 o'clock, just as the gray tinge of dawn began to appear in the east. Then, less than a quarter of a mile away, a curling blue smoke was seen.

"There is the still," said the girl, her index finger pointing to the smoke. "I will wait here. I must not be seen for fear of the consequences."

Leaving the girl near a large tree, the party started on. The still was surrounded and one of the Stewards, who was at work, was captured. The still was a large one, with a capacity of 85 gallons, and was in full operation. It was located in a little ravine, just at the base of a ledge of rocks, from which poured a large stream of water. The raiders made short work of destroying the still, worm, mash-tubs, corn and meal, and returned to where the girl was in hiding. At the end of the road she left them, and the prisoner was brought back on the horse she had ridden.

Want a Receiver.

Dayton, O., Aug. 16.—The courts have been asked for a receiver for the firm of Mead, Phillips & Granville, who have been for two years experimenting in the manufacture of typewriting machines. They have sunk $30,000 in the business and are in debt that much more. The firm consists of Harry E. Mead, Charles A. Phillips and Bernard Granville.

The failure was precipitated by the assignment of H. E. Mead & Co., manufacturers and dealers in papers, whose liabilities are $15,000; assets, $35,000.

H. E. Mead & Co. are members of the National Paper Trust, and had been regarded as gilt-edged.

Met an Awful Fate.

Cincinnati, Aug. 17.—One of the attractions at Coney Island Saturday afternoon was a balloon ascension by Miss Annie Harkess, whose home is in Terre Haute, Ind. The young lady had acquired some distinction as an aeronaut and had made a number of daring parachute descents from balloons. On this occasion she lost her hold and fell to the ground a distance of 200 feet and was crushed to death.

Fell from a Balloon.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 17.—An aeronaut named Johnson, fell from a balloon to the ground, a distance of about 2,000 feet, Saturday afternoon, and was frightfully crushed. He died instantly. It is said he was intoxicated.

LIKE A ROARING LION

The Water Came Down the Mountain Side.

A River a Hundred Feet Deep Carries Away Everything Within Its Course.

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 17.—The Pikes peak region is now suffering from the effects of a tremendous flood.

Saturday night a cloudburst occurred on the Colorado Midland railway, 15 miles above here.

Immediately after the cloudburst, the narrow valley was a raging torrent. The railroad was completely washed out in several places. When the torrent reached the canon in the Ute pass, it carried everything before it, and was, at times, 100 feet deep.

Within 12 miles the track was washed out in as many as a dozen places and it will be three days at least before regular trains will be running.

The Weather Market.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The following weather crop reports have been issued:

Ohio—Corn continues to promise well, but has suffered some from drouth, as have potatoes and pastures; the oat yield is large.

Michigan—More rain is needed for corn and potatoes. Young clover is suffering from dry, hot weather.

Illinois—Corn conditions greatly improved. Corn will be a heavy crop if not injured by frosts. The soil is in excellent condition for fall plowing.

Indiana—The rainfall was very badly distributed and was generally deficient. More rain is needed to insure a good corn crop in the greater portion of the state.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

Distress After Eating Sick Headache Heart-burn Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a faint or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

That

Wolff's ACME Blacking

IS CHEAPER than any other dressing at any price, be it 5 cents, 10 cents, or 25 cents, you can convince yourself by wearing one shoe dressed with Acme Blacking and the other shoe dressed with whatever happens to be your favorite dressing. While Acme Blacking will endure a month through snow or rain, and can, if the shoe is soiled, be washed clean, the other dressing will not last a single day in wet weather.

Your shoes will look better, last longer and be more comfortable if dressed with Wolff's Acme Blacking.

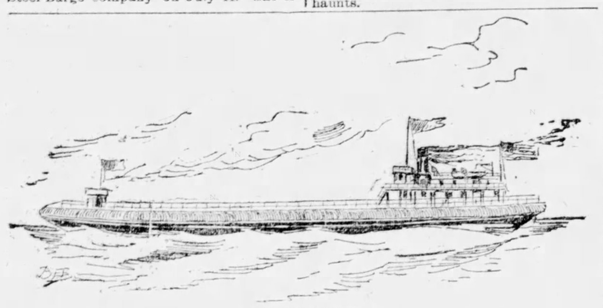
The first whaleback steamer to enter Toledo harbor arrived Saturday night, and has been an object of much curiosity. The steamer is the A. D. Thompson, of Buffalo, Captain Howitt, and she is loading coal for Duluth at the Ohio Central dock. The Thompson was built this spring, and was launched at the West Superior ship yards of the American Steel Barge company on July 11. She is



THE WHALEBACK.

1,075 tons burden, 265 feet long, 38 feet wide and 24 feet deep. She has a carrying capacity of about 75,000 bushels of wheat or 2,500 tons of coal.

Her engines are triple expansion, with Scotch boilers, and the steamers can make a speed of 13 miles per hour loaded or 15 miles light. Complete the steamer cost about $160,000.

There are five whaleback steamers now afloat, the others being the Colgate Hoyt, McDougall, C. W. Wetmore and J. C. Colby, the latter two being on salt water. The Thompson will go to the ocean next year and engage in the coasting trade.

New Revenue Cutter.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—The plans and specifications for the new revenue cutter Calumet have been received from the treasury department at the custom house. They give promise of a craft of which Collector Clark can well feel proud. She will be of steel, 94 feet 6 inches long, 20 feet 6 inches wide and 10 feet 3 inches deep.

Another Whaleback Launched.

West Superior, Aug. 17—The whaleback barge No. 115 was successfully launched Saturday afternoon. Among the large number of people present was Secretary of Agriculture Rusk. No. 115 is of the regulation size of the tow barges, 285 feet in length and designed to carry 3,000 tons on sixteen feet draught.

Dredging Plant Seized.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—The customs department has seized a dredging plant at Sault Ste. Marie for undervaluation. The amount involved is $5,000. The dredges were imported by Hickler Bros., sub-contractors on the "Soo" canal. Four steamboats also have been seized there on the charge of infraction of coasting regulations.

Norwalk, Aug. 17.—(Special)—William Oakley, convicted a few days ago of assaulting Charles Wood, of Townsend, has been sentenced by Judge Thomas to the Cleveland workhouse for six months and to pay a fine of $50 and costs, to stand committed until fine and costs are paid.

It will be from 14 to 16 months before William will be seen in his accustomed haunts.

SOME SPICY CURRENT TOPICS

Of Local and Neighborhood Interest.

Notes and Comments on Incidents Occurring Daily—Prepared for Readers Who are Hustled for Time.

Democratic Committee Meeting.

Democratic county central committee meets to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the office of Secretary Vanfleet, in the Produce Exchange, to determine as to Lucas county's representation in the judicial convention to be held at Fremont on the 26th inst.

At the Theaters This Evening.

At Wheeler's opera house this evening George Thatcher's minstrels and Rich & Harris' Comedy company will unite in presenting an entirely new ideal Tuxedo, a three act comedy, during which the minstrel performance is brought in incidentally.

At the People's the May Russell Burlesque company, headed by the well-known comedian, Bob Slavin, will open a week's engagement.

One of Frank Perley's on McKinley.

A few days ago Maj. McKinley attended the Barnum-Bailey circus in company with Frank Perley, the press agent. They occupied seats in the press box. When the camel race was in progress a newspaper man leaned over and whispered in Mr. McKinley's ear:

"There's your opponents, and they're humping themselves."

"You bet they are," replied the major, "and they're making pretty good time, too."

Cherry Street Pavement Completed.

The Cherry street pavement has been finished and Contractor McKinney is to be congratulated for pushing it through in the manner he did.

It was one of the largest contracts ever let in Toledo. The street is 9,000 feet long and 44 feet wide. It required 2,662 cords of wood to complete it. There are in the pavement something like 2,000,000 cedar blocks. Mr. McKinney estimates that it required 100,000 cedar trees to fill his contract.

An average of 75 men were employed on the work during the 62 days it was in progress.

Grand Marshal Greene Issues an Order.

This morning Gen. J. W. Greene, who is grand marshal of Friday's parade issued the following order:

Orders No. 1.

For the purpose of completing all details for the coming parade as ordered by Gen. J. C. Whittaker, the aids upon staff of Gland Marshal to wit: J. C. Prentiss, J. C. Meissner, Ed. Grossenbecker, J. F. Aris, O. A. Winired and Chas. C. Hirssig are hereby ordered to report for duty at an adjourned meeting of the general committee of arrangements to be held at Odd Fellow's Temple, at 7 o'clock, p. m., sharp, this, Monday evening, August 17, 1891.

J. W. GREENE, Marshal.

The Odd Fellows Will Have a Week.

To-morrow morning the initial ceremonies incident to the opening of the Patriarchs Militant encampment will occur. This evening the various committees will assemble at the Odd Fellows' temple for badges and final instructions, and in the morning the sub-headquarters will be established in the Marine building. At noon the flag will be raised at Presque Isle, and the afternoon taken up in receiving visiting cantons. The crowds will not arrive, however, before Wednesday. The local committees have everything in shape, and Toledo will extend a good share of that hospitality for which she has become noted. The BEE will give a full account of the program from day to day.

Miss Ella Selner's Funeral.

The funeral services of Miss Ella Selner were held at Broadway M. E. church yesterday afternoon, every seat being occupied. There was a profusion of flowers from friends, especially marks of esteem from the deceased lady's Bible class, who were present in a body, and the Christian Endeavor society. Rev. L. C. Webster, assisted by Elder Pope, conducted the exercises, which were impressive throughout. It is seldom more general and sincere regret has been felt at the loss of an associate as was the case yesterday. The life that has gone out had been spent in an earnest endeavor to do all the good possible, and many were at the church who could testify as to the zealous Christian character of the deceased. Sorrowfully were the remains laid away at Woodlawn.

The Largest in the World.

The Alaska Refrigerator company, of Michigan City, are erecting at Muskegon the largest plant in the world for the exclusive manufacture of refrigerators. They are putting in all latest improved machinery and have just awarded the contract for the several elevators required to the Haughton Machine and Foundry company, of this city. The Haughton company has orders ahead for enough elevators to keep them running full time for several months to come. Their elevators are fast gaining a big reputation.

The market quotations in the BEE are compiled from United Press special dispatches and from reports received by the Toledo Produce Exchange, and specially arranged by Mr. Denison B. Smith, secretary of the Exchange.

OFFICE OF THE TOLEDO BEE, TOLEDO, O., Aug. 15

London wheat and corn markets very strong, six pence to a shilling higher per quarter. English and French country markets dearer. Liverpool wheat strong and three pence per 100 pounds higher; corn strong and one penny higher.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,008,586 bu, compared with 370,628 bu on the same day last year.

Wheat stocks, Toledo increased 110,558 bu; New York increased 172,631 bu.

Bradstreet's report of exports.—Wheat exports have spurted again, aggregating for six days ending August 14, 5,147,000 bus from the United States alone, and 5,538,000 bus from the United States and Canada. Montreal and United States exports (including flour as wheat) in the like week a year ago were less than 2,000,000 bushels, and United States exports in that week, 1889, were about 1,900,000 bushels, while the aggregate for the second week of August, 1888, was only 2,500,000 bushels.

New York Flour Market Saturday.

Flour—This market also felt the effect of the rise in wheat. Some parties withdrew their offerings, while others demanded an advance of 15@35c on favorite brands. Gains of 10@15 were quite general on all grades. The best spring wheat patents were held at $6. There was a good demand for a half holiday, and the volume of business aggregated 25,000 bbls and sacks.

The New York Commercial Bulletin gives the details of a rye deal where the margins against a Chicago seller is $37,000, and which had not been put up. This side of the deal sometimes "comes very high."

The New York Financial Chronicle reports net earnings for 146 roads for July increased $1,273,641, or 8.52 per cent. In no previous month this year has the result been so favorable. Sixty-four roads for first week in August gained $462,819, or 7.81 per cent.

Statistics published Friday by the Cleveland Iron Trade Review show that up to August 1, 1,998,131 tons of iron ore had been laid down at Lake Erie ports. This points to a total of 5,000,000 or 5,500,000 tons for the season, against 6,874,000 tons last year.

Business failures in the United States and Canada for the week were 227, against 231 the previous week, and 197 for the corresponding week in 1890.

Chicago Bulletin says: The wheat crop of Kansas is not turning out as good as anticipated, especially in the central and southern portions of the state.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 657,958 bu in excess of the corresponding Monday in 1890.

The export clearances Saturday from four Atlantic ports were 634,982 bu and flour to make an aggregate of over 700,000 bu. Corn exports, light.

The English markets for grain, as reported herein, are strong and higher for wheat and corn.

Causes of the Late Advance.

Before the advent of our harvest it was apparent, that if our wheat was of good quality it would command a wide market. But for the immense short sales at the lake ports and by timid interior dealers, the price would have appreciated from the commencement of receipts. Many of these dealers could not believe that prices would be maintained on such a crop and they sold it right and left. It is now clear that speculators all over the world were large sellers of wheat and rye for future delivery. The trade on ascertained that the immense purchases for August, September and later were for export, and that the actual wheat would be demanded, and prices began to improve. More and more the reports of crop losses abroad were verified, and were augmented by wet harvest weather. The deficient crop of rye in Russia and Germany, and alleged shortage of rye in France, were dully adding strength to the world's markets because it was clear that only American wheat could supply the deficiencies, when the Russian edict prohibiting the export of rye in upon the markets and created alarm and consternation. It made plain the wide gap that can only be filled with our wheat. It is likely that no country can supply the rye loss, except with wheat, and thus it increases the demand that will ultimately be made upon us.

What has added to the excitement is the purchases of the short sellers on both sides of the ocean, and it has accelerated the pace of the advance very materially. When this short interest is settled there is likely to be more moderate conditions.

Northwest Wheat.

The weather conditions, since the few days of intense heat, have been very favorable, and the northwest crop is likely to be saved in good condition. We are likely to get this week some increase in the movement thence.

Farmers' Alliances.

If an approximation to present prices of grain can be maintained farmers will be the happiest of people, and the foundation of the alliances and the influences of their great unwashed advocates will fade away suddenly like the grass.

Clover Seed—The receipts since May 1 have been 330 bags. To-day there are 21 bags new alike received. The shipments since May 1 are 1,500 bags.

The visible supply of wheat increased last week 1,602,000 bu; corn, 55,000 bu; oats, 106,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1890 wheat decreased 37,000 bu; corn decreased 1,026,000 bu; oats increased 4,104 bu.

The wheat markets in this country opened with great excitement to-day and at much higher prices. The advance was but of short duration. It is hardly profitable to attempt to follow markets which have fluctuated as wildly as those of to-day. It will answer all purposes to say that at Chicago December wheat opened at an advance of 6½c and sold at $1 03, declined to $1 03, rallied to $1 04 and closed at $1 03¾.

In New York the changes were less radical, but the variations have been very great. It looks decidedly unsettled and unsafe.

The closing prices in New York are, August 2¾c and September 2½c lower than Saturday. For the same futures Chicago is 5c on August and 4c on September lower.

Corn in New York is 1¾ on August and 2¾ on September higher, while Chicago is 1¾ on September and 1¾ on August higher.

In Toledo business has, of course, been very active, with an irregular and unsettled market for wheat futures.

Between opening and closing prices the change is 6c to 6¾c. We must refer our readers to our list of sales for particulars. The market closed weak. Foreign markets, except Berlin, are quoted as closing higher, but we do not always credit them. On the call cash and August wheat sold at $1 10; September at $1 09¾; December at $1 11½. After the call August sold at $1 11 and closed at $1 05. a loss of 2c; September sold at $1 07¾ and closed at $1 04¾, a loss of 1½c; December sold at 1½c and closed at $1 06¾, a loss of 2c. Cash wheat was largely dealt in, but at a sharp decline. No 2 soft opened at $1 06@1 07 and closed at $1 05, a loss of 2c. Sales 67,275 bu. No 3 soft at $1 06@1 04 and lower to sell. No 4 soft at $1 03. Rejected No 1 at $1 00. In corn and oats nothing doing.

Rye on the call August sold at $1 08@1 07. After the call No. 2 sold at $1 05@1 07 and closed at $1 02. No. 3 for September at $1 04.

Clover seed. On the call October sold at $4 87½. December at $5 00 to $4 97½. After the call December sold at $4 92½ and October at $4 90.

The stock market opened active and firm. The first prices were generally ¼ to ¾ per cent. higher than the closing figures of Saturday for the general market and 1⅞ per cent. and 1 per cent. respectively for Rock Island and New York Central.

During the early dealings trading was very active in L. & N. and Burlington, and those two stocks further advanced a fraction. The general market, however, was not so firm, and there was some decline from the opening figures. Rock Island was especially weak, declining from 78 to 76¾, recovering some of the decline by 11 o'clock. In the second hour there was a renewed buying. Lackawanna was the feature. It was bought rather heavily and advanced 1¾, to 137. The rest of the stocks went up in sympathy. At noon about the best figures were current. The advance over Saturday's figures ranged from ⅛ to 1½ per cent. At the present writing the market is dull but steady, with the advance generally maintained. The sales amounted to 614,300 shares.

"Nothing got away from us," says Ex-Speaker Reed talking of the Fifty-first congress. That is the indictment the people bring against his congress, and he does well to plead guilty.

A ghost wandering aimlessly about the corridors of the capitol is the latest Washington sensation. Probably the ghost of the late and now lamented surplus, awaiting reincarnation at the hands of the coming democratic administration.

Some 7,500 business failures so far this year as against 6,500 for the corresponding months last year do not necessarily indicate a period of financial distress. The figures may be taken as an indication of the increased power, under increased monopoly-favoring legislation, of the big fish to eat up the little fish.

That Rev. Sam Jones has declared for Grover Cleveland for president, and Thomas Brackett Reed speaks a good word for Mills of Texas for next speaker of the house, looks as though there may be a deep-seated plot on the part of our friends the enemy to cover the best democrats with the shame of republican praises.

The Chicago Times says "McKinley in his desperation is importing talent wholesale from Kansas into the Buckeye state to help him in his campaign." All a mistake. It is into Pennsylvania McKinley is desperately reaching after the help he stands so much in need of, and it isn't in the shape of "talent" he wants it, either.

The republican organs burn with indignation and spatter their pages with fiery rhetoric over reputed fusions of democratic and people's party local tickets. The farmers are being used as cats'-paws, they are being duped by the democrats, shriek the organs. The farmer in politics does worry the Ohio republican this year, to be sure, and with good reason.

The Irish land purchase bill has become operative. If government, acting as middle man between the Irish landlord and the Irish tenant, can redistribute the land to the advantage of both, will not a clamor arise among the landless of England and Scotland for the application of the same law in these countries? The land hungry of Great Britain are by no means confined to Ireland.

The democrats of Defiance county held their first representative convention on Saturday. Two excellent democrats, John W. Winn and John Dowe, were candidates for nomination. They are old-time friends and the contest was friendly. Mr. Winn was chosen. He is a young man of fine ability and will be a leader in legislative circles in Columbus.

Rapid transit by underground railway is likely to be inaugurated in New York in the near future. A special committee appointed to investigate has recommended the building of a four track road under ground, from the battery to Harlem. The underground system has long been successfully operated in London, and the committee thinks the general plan of London roads could be adopted in New York and made to pay.

Our republican exchanges quote the admission of the London Times that the McKinley tariff has caused a falling off of exports from England to the United States, but they carefully refrain from giving the reasoning and conclusion of the Times that the chief sufferer from this tariff is the country so unwise as to have established it. But perhaps the exchanges realize that the American people have found out this side of the question for themselves.

The Bee prints an interesting interview to-day with Judge A. S. Latty, of Defiance, a pioneer of the Maumee valley. He has been closely identified with its growth, development and material prosperity. He was on the common pleas bench twenty years as a republican, though his tariff opinions remained fixed and immovable, as he believed when a democrat, in the early forties. He is a free trader and always has so declared. The interview is reminiscent, instructive and interesting.

The shortage in the French wheat crop is so serious that the government finds it necessary to suspend the customs surtax on wheat for one year. Badly as Russia needs money none of its rye crop can be spared for customary export. Ordinary laborers in Germany are already suffering on account of the high price of bread, potatoes and meat. There is no possible measurement of the famine in India, but it is devastating some sections of that country like war. In the United States, according to the annual review of the American Agriculturist, farm profits will be one billion dollars more than for a number of preceding years.

WOOL TARIFF DOCTORS.

Mr. Thomas Dolan is a woolen manufacturer of Philadelphia. He had a hand in the framing of the wool schedule in the present tariff, acting in fact as a colleague of that gentle shepherd of Ohio, Judge Lawrence, before the ways and means committee. When it was adopted the manufacturer was as well satisfied as the representative of the wool growers' interests, and it did really look as though the lion and the lamb were going to lie down together. But alas! the millenium is no nearer than ever, and the lamb is inside the lion, after all.

The satisfaction of wool buyers and of wool growers was equally deep when the McKinley bill became law, and with one of them it is abiding. Mr. Dolan writes as follows in the New York World:

"It is an interesting fact, deserving of emphasis of statement, that the prices of wool are lower now than they were one year ago. This decline was distinctly promised by the protectionists during the discussion which accompanied the framing of the McKinley tariff."

This naturally arouses the ire of Judge Lawrence, since it shows him treacherous to the wool growers' interests, or without ability to look after them, and he rushes into print in the Wool and Cotton Reporter and shakes a metaphorical fist at his late colleague, the manufacturer. Judge Lawrence told the committee, "in January of 1890," so he writes, that the duty on wool must be increased, "in order that the farmer might make the wool industry more profitable." No doubt, and no doubt he was promised an advance in prices, just as the manufacturers were promised a decline—but one side had to be fooled, and is not this the true inwardness of the wool schedule which Mr. Dolan has let out? The manufacturers were taken care of by the high protectionists, as usual; and the farmers got left—also as usual.

The sting of Mr. Dolan's statement is its truthfulness, which no denial by Judge Lawrence can disprove, but its publication is strikingly ill-timed. Mr. Dolan should have been grateful enough to his friends, "the protectionists," to have refrained from giving them away just now when they have to endeavor to elect their high priest governor of Ohio. Ohio, where the wool growers live and vote and where they are selling their wool—in fulfillment of the pledges given the manufacturers by McKinley—from two to four cents a pound cheaper than last year.

Make Him Smile.

A Macedonian cry comes up from Ohio to Kansas for republican speakers from the latter state to help McKinley fight the alliance. The idea of the Buckeye republicans sending for the fellows who permitted the people's party to elect a working majority in the Kansas legislature last fall will doubtless cause John J. Ingalls to quietly smile under his iron gray mustache.—Kansas City Star.

Ben's Soliloquy.

"If Blaine is mentioned I am gone,"
Says little Ben in thought,
"But now a scheme I'egin to dawn
Upon my mind. They ought,
E'en if Jim does win the race,
To me this offer make—
That I accept the second place—
Well, that's bet er than no cake."
—Chicago Times.

The Rye Ukase.

The London Daily News put the case none too strongly when it declares that "the farmers of America are masters of the situation, and it is to be hoped that they will use their strength mercifully." If the proposed wheat trust were a possible thing, it could not have more favorable conditions for its operations.—Wheeling Register.

Teach Them Something.

The Kansas farmers can at least boast of running a political campaign without boodle. Their announced purpose to rely for their campaign fund on one-cent contributions from all those who vote their ticket ought to teach the old parties a thing or two on this subject.—Boston Herald.

More Than He will Enjoy.

The waiting of the time when wool will be 40 cents is about like when the maiden waited for Sir Launcelot. He cometh not, she said. There is a confounded sight more Tennyson poetry in this, perhaps, than in the Ohio farmer selling wool for 27 cents will enjoy.—Massillonian.

In Something Different.

The major will have to carry his campaign ammunition in something different from a tin can. Unless he does the ardor of the people will dampen it, and the powder will refuse to go off at the right time. —Lima Times.

Chilly Weather.

Senator Peffer and ex-Senator Ingalls rode from Kansas City to Atchison a few days ago on the same car. Passengers complained of the cold and declared they would not ride in a refrigerator again.—Buffalo News.

Time for Being Sanguine.

John Sherman is "sanguine of re-election." This is his time for being sanguine, for it will not be very long now before the voting will be done to decide the result without regard to his feelings.—St. Louis Republic.

Will Be Petrified.

When all the Kansas and Indiana women get their mouths under full headway in Ohio, shouting against the robber tariff, the reps. will feel they are "petrified to the spot."—Canton Democrat.

Mr. Foraker, of Ohio.

To Plunder Somebody.

MONEY FOR THE PEOPLE'S PARTY

Kansas Farmers Ask for One Cent Contributions.

Topeka, Aug. 17.—The people's party of Kansas have devised a plan to raise money for the next campaign in the state. Only $1,100 was expended by the people's state central committee last fall in a campaign which elected five congressmen, 84 legislators, a United States senator and a majority on the county tickets. This fall the committee has decided to expend $10,000. Every man who voted for Willets will be asked to contribute 1 cent to the central committee. It will come through the county central committees and where 2,000 votes were cast for Willets the county committee will forward $20 to the state committee, which will be turned over to J. B. French, secretary of the state alliance. A committee of three members from the people's central committee will advise with French in regard to expenditures.

AROUND A GREAT STATE.

Political Conventions Held in Many Places.

Democrats Indorse the Farmers in Gallia.

Fayette Republicans Give Foraker a Slap in the Face—Strong Democratic Nominations Made.

Columbus, Aug. 17.—(Special.)—Politics throughout Ohio is begining to take on a more interesting aspect. From every county comes encouraging reports concerning the work the democrats are doing. In Hamilton county the democrats are all shoulder to shoulder. There is no party division and a splendid county ticket will be nominated. On the other hand the republicans have two tickets in the field and the peoples party ticket is considered strong, so that Hamilton county, so far as democracy is concerned, is not giving Governor Campbell any anxiety.

At Gallipolis, Saturday, the democratic county convention met and adopted resolutions indorsing the national platform of 1888, the state platform of 1892, severely condemning the McKinley tariff, and commending the administration of Gov. Campbell, and pledging faithful service to secure his re-election. These resolutions were adopted by a unanimous vote and with much enthusiasm.

Mr. Nash then introduced the following, which had been adopted by the committee, and upon its adoption or rejection depended the issue of the day.

"We believe that public office is a trust, created for the benefit of the people, and not for the purpose of personal aggrandizement; and we denounce the unscrupulous and corrupt methods by which a few designing politicians in this country have succeeded in wresting the control of the offices from the hands of the people as subversive of popular government and injurious to the public welfare.

"We believe it to be our imperative duty to use every endeavor to free our county from the curses of ring rule, and, recognizing the futility of separate action and without abating in any degree our love for, or fealty to, the democratic party, it is

"Resolved, That we co-operate with the People's party, so-called, to the end that the entail of the offices of this county may be defeated and good government prevail."

These were adapted by a vote of 105¼ to 37½.

The result was received with great cheers and was followed by a motion that the gentlemen named below be chosen as the county ticket, to wit: Representative, James M. Hannan; Treasurer, Frank McDaniel, jr.; Sheriff, William Mahaffy; Commissioner, J. L. Filinger; Infirmary Director, James H. Rodgers; Coroner, C. C. Barton; Surveyor, Herman V. Carl. The motion was adopted, and the above named were declared the democratic nominees for Gallia county.

This ticket has already been placed in the field, by the People's party, and it now becomes the choice of all the opponents of the republican party.

The Fayette county republican convention Saturday gave Mr. Foraker a very black eye by adopting the following resolutions:

"The distinguished and efficient work of Hon. William McKinley, jr., in the house of representatives, and of John Sherman in the senate, in perfecting and maintaining republican legislation, has invited against them the combined power of foreign and domestic opposition, and the defeat of either or both would be heralded throughout the world as a defeat of republicanism in Ohio. It has already been boastfully claimed by emissaries of other states that John Sherman must be defeated at all hazards. With such a threat coming to us, the republicans of Fayette county declare that it is a just sense of right and duty to boldly maintain the national legislation of the republican party, and indorse emphatically these distinguished leaders by electing the one governor, and demanding the continuance of the other in the United States senate."

The ticket was then made up as follows: representative, Harvey M. Daugherty; county commissioner, Henry Fulton; infirmary director, Robert Vincent; treasurer, E. W. Weisheimer.

The Franklin county People's Party convention broke up in a row Saturday. An effort was made to get all delegates present to sign a pledge to vote for the ticket to be nominated. This caused trouble and two-thirds of the convention left the hall. Among the seceders were L. L. Pegg, president of the county farmers alliance, and Mr. Hepner, secretary of the convention. After their departure, which was loudly hissed, the remaining delegates named the following ticket:

Representatives, E. J. Bracken, W. F. Barr and W. L. Seeds; Sheriff, Timothy Shea; Recorder, Chas. F. Leavitt; Prosecuting Attorney, George S. Jones; Commissioner, J. R. Lunn; Infirmary Director, Lafayette Mann; Coroner, G. F. Taylor.

The official vote of Kentucky has been received in this city and is as follows:

The 116 counties reported show the following vote for Governor: Brown, 137,983; Wood, 111,816; Harris, 4,238; Erwin, 25,279; Brown's plurality, 26,166.

The three counties which have not officially reported are Kenton, Floyd and Garrard, and their vote, from reliable reports, give Brown a net plurality of 1,702, which would make his total plurality 27,928.

The total vote four years ago was: Buckner, Democrat, 143,270; Bradley, Republican, 126,473; Fox, Prohibitionist, 8,395; Cormen, 4,434; a plurality for Buckner of 16,707 and a majority of 3,908.

It will be observed by the above that Mr. Brown did not receive a majority of the votes cast. The counties of Allen, Breathitt, Garard, Harrison and Metcalfe are not reported officially on the constitution. The 114 counties reported show 305,923 for and 71,051 against the constitution, a majority for the new instrument of 135,474.

Preble county republicans have named the following ticket: For representative, Elam Fisher; treasurer, John Gibbons; Commissioner, Werter Pugh; infirmary director, Joseph W. Coffmann.

The ticket nominated by the Seneca county democrats, Saturday, is a very strong one, as follows: Representative, Charles Fiumerfelt; auditor, John B. Ehrenfried; commissioner, Nicholas Burtcher; treasurer, Charles Goetz; infirmary director, William King; coroner, Ed. Lepper. The convention was presided over by J. K. Pettit, a able and aggressive young democrat, and his address, replete with telling points against the iniquities of republicanism, aroused the convention to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. Conservative democrats place the majority for Campbell and the whole ticket in Seneca county at 1,200.

The Jackson county's farmer ticket is as follows: For representative, Joseph Peterson; for treasurer, Michael Kissinger; for recorder, Geo. W. Reynolds; for prosecuting attorney, John K. Stephenson; for commissioner, A. H. Carr; for infirmary director, Samuel Richards. The committee was instructed to find a candidate for surveyor. Delegates were selected and instructed for R. W. Evans for state senator.

The Auglaize county prohibitionists held their convention Saturday and nominated the following ticket: Representative, C. H. Welsh, of Waynesfield; county clerk, J. F. Stout, of St. Mary's; treasurer, Dr. Harrington, of New Hampshire; commissioner, W. T. Cornell, of Fusheta; infirmary director, Wm. Kiser, of Fusheta.

They placed no candidate in nomination for prosecutor, as there is no attorney in the county identified with their party or even in sympathy with their elements, nor would they indorse any on the other ticket in this county.

Van Wert county democracy put a splendid ticket in the field Saturday. Hon. E. B. Gilliland was renominated for representative by acclamation. The balance of the ticket is as follows: Prosecuting attorney, C. V. Hoke; surveyor, Lee R. Beatty; treasurer, Peter Hertz, jr.; commissioner, Peter Knittle; infirmary director, R. Davis; coroner, C. F. McFadden.

The people's party of Sandusky county nominated the following ticket: Representative, F. E. Fitch, Bellevue; commissioner, John Stokes; sheriff, Chas. Kramb; recorder, G. A. Perrine; surveyor, E. K. Warner; infirmary director, A. Peters; coroner, Grant Fugerson. The convention was well attended and considerable interest was manifested. Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. A. S. Diggs, both of Kansas, addressed the meeting.

The people's party of Hardin county has named the following ticket: Representative, N. R. Piper; sheriff, John A. Whitlock; commissioner, James R. Millar; infirmary director, Oliver Bell; coroner, J. F. Webber; surveyor, O. P. Wilson. The first three have heretofore been republicans, the last three democrats.

The democrats in Meigs county presented the following ticket to the people: Representative, S. W. Alexander; sheriff, Joel M. Hoskins; commissioner, C. H. Crow; surveyor, James Hanlin; infirmary director, John S. Landaker; coroner, Dr. J. M. Titus. At the close of the convention Charles F. Armstead, a colored orator from Charleston, W. Va., made a speech that set the old wheel horses wild with cheering.

LABOR NOTES.

A ballot has been taken within the last month in all the subordinate unions under the jurisdiction of the International Typographical union upon the question of demanding nine hours per day for all printers working in the book and job offices of the International union. President Prescott and Secretary-Treasurer McClavey, whose headquarters are in Indianapolis, were to open and announce the vote yesterday, but last evening these officers stated that the vote has been received, but has not been counted.

District Assembly, No. 72, has made elaborate arrangements for the basket picnic to Put-in Bay on Labor day. Various outside assemblies will attend.

The committee of the Central Labor Union on Labor Day arrangements met yesterday afternoon and partially perfected preparations for the event. Notification was received from Fort Wayne, Columbus and Detroit relative to the intention of coming here on that day. There will be a large delegation. The various Unions of the city will participate in the parade.

CURRENT DEFIANCE NEWS.

Sentiment of the People as to Willey's Guilt.

Application for Free Delivery—Stand Pipe Nearly Completed—News Notes of Interest.

Defiance, Aug. 17.—(Special)—No town or city in Ohio has grown or prospered more rapidly than has Defiance during the past few years, in proportion to its population. The factories, of which the city has such a number, have been unusually busy, and during most of the time running to their utmost capacity.

The growth of the city is shown in more ways than one, but perhaps the increase in the business of the postoffice shows it as well as any illustration that could be cited.

Postmaster Squires said recently to a Bee:

"That Defiance has improved wonderfully and that the population has largely increased is shown by the fact that our revenues have reached that point where we are entitled to free delivery. The revenues of all free delivery cities must reach $10,000 per year and we have reached that point and passed it.

"I made formal application to the department for free delivery and was told that the matter would be taken up as soon as it was reached in the regular order, which we hope will be soon."

New Stand Pipe.

It will be remembered that last spring the stand pipe of the water works bursted and since that time workmen have been engaged upon the new one. It will soon be completed and then the system will be better than ever before. A large number of men are employed on the work and last week they quit work because of a misunderstanding. The matter was soon fixed up, however, and the men went to work again.

The Late Sensation.

Harry Willey, who is confined in the county jail, is not in good health and is visited daily by his wife. There is a division in public sentiment as to his guilt and the trial is looked forward to with much interest. Willey's attorneys will make a case of self-defense if possible, and are confident that they will be able to acquit him. One thing in his favor is the fact that, at the time of the killing, he had just recovered from a sick spell caused by a runaway accident a few weeks previously. There was no eye-witness to the shooting but one of the strong points against the defendant is his purloining of Lawyer Woods' revolver, the one which was used to kill Krotz.

Labor Day.

Great preparations are being made for the celebration of Labor day here, which will be observed September 7. There will be many attractions, and committees are now actively at work getting matters in shape. Base ball games, foot ball matches, hose cart contests, foot races, boat races and other sports will furnish amusement for the crowd.

Good speakers will be in attendance, and a grand gala day is expected.

Not Satisfied.

A number of the gentlemen who accompanied Hon. W. D. Hill to Montana have returned and do not express themselves in glowing terms of the new Eldorado. They say the soil is not fertile as it might be, that it is subject to drouth and raise numerous objections to the location of the proposed Ohio colony. They admit that this season of the year is perhaps the one above all others in which the country would present an uninviting appearance. Mr. Hill, it is understood, will return in a few weeks and will not go west again until spring.

Still Have Hopes.

Defiance people still have faith in the construction of the Columbus, Lima & Northwestern railroad. Mr. Frank J. Mains of the Democrat said to a Bee: "We think the road will soon be completed. It is graded from here to Lima, and the ties are scattered along the line. Mr. Faurot is confident that he will soon have things in shape so that the iron may be laid and the cars started. It looks to us that the B. & O. company ought to buy the road. It would give them a bee line from northwestern Ohio to Columbus, instead of the circuitous route by way of Newark. If the road is once in running order there is no doubt but it would be paying property in a few years. Mr. Faurot is in good spirits and confident that arrangements for its completion will soon be made. The smaller bridges are all in and the abutments here for the big bridge across the Maumee, built."

Personal Points Etc.

Fred Wolsiffer will soon remove his family to Alliance.

County Auditor-elect Deindorfer will assume his duties next month.

Several small burglaries were committed by crooks in the wake of the big show.

Defiance will have no fair this year, but the Hicksville exhibition is expected to be larger and more complete than ever.

Miss Nellie Myers, who has been visiting Miss Mollie Wisner, has returned to her home at Fostoria.

Miss Eva Bloomfield, of Napoleon, is the guest of friends here.

Miss May Wilson, of Napoleon, will be the guest of Mrs. S. F. Sheily for a few weeks.

The Y. M. C. A. branch here is prospering finely. Rev. May talked to the boys yesterday afternoon.

Miss Gertie Squire has returned from Chautauqua.

Mr. Chas. E. Bronson and son were at Lakeside over Sunday.

But one arrest was made in the city show day. That is a pretty good record.

AN INNOVATION

Made by the Second Regiment at Camp Wood.

The Battle of Fay's Farm Fought Saturday.

A Spirited Sham Fight in the Wilds of Wood County—Last Day in Camp—Lots of Visitors.

Camp Wood, Aug. 17.—(Special war correspondent)—The Second Regiment, O. N. G., which has been encamped at Bowling Green, broke camp this morning and the different companies are now on their way home, after one of the most successful camps in the history of the regiment. More military work has been done, and the regiment has improved considerably over the splendid work done at Presque Isle last year.

Their inspection during the week was magnificently done, and Captain Wilson, of the regular army, who inspected them in company with Col. Coit, pronounced them the most efficient regiment in the National Guard of Ohio.

Yesterday was a great day in camp, and the soldiers were visited by hundreds from the vicinity, and large excursions were run into Bowling Green on all the railroads.

A number were on hand from Toledo and they were the honored guests of the day, being treated by genial Col. Howe in a royal manner. The Toledo battalion consisted of Capt. McMaken, of the Cadets; Capt. Roulet, of Battery D; Capt. Holbrook, of Company H; Lieut. Howard of the same company, and a squad of Cadets, consisting of Sergeant Welson, Corporals Pixley and Raymer, Privates Smith and Phillips and the BEE's war correspondent. The party returned to Toledo this morning.

Capt. McMaken came down to Camp Wood Saturday morning and during the day paid Col. Howe a handsome compliment by presenting him with a certificate of life honorary membership in the cadets. The compliment was highly appreciated by Col. Howe.

On Saturday evening the piano in the camp of Company C was removed to the large dining hall of the Fair association, and an informal ball was indulged in. Besides the officers and ladies of the regiment a large number of ladies and gentlemen from the city participated. The impromptu dancing party proved a delightful success, and "General" Robinson made a brilliant hit as manager.

Divine services Sunday morning were conducted by Rev. Brown, of Bowling Green, and an immense congregation filled the grand stand.

In the afternoon an informal banquet and reception was tendered to the business men of Bowling Green by the officers of the regiment. Elegant refreshments were served and brief speeches made expressing the good will existing between the citizens and soldiers. Col. Howe acted as master of ceremonies in his usual graceful manner.

Besides the address of Col. Howe, sentiments of good fellowship were expressed by Mayor Murphy, Judge Parker, Messrs. Bell, Troup, Brewer and Wilson, of Bowling Green, Capt. McMaken of Toledo, and Major Clen Denning, of the Second regiment. The informal affair was heartily enjoyed by all who participated, and it made a pleasant farewell meeting.

In the afternoon Company C, of Lima, gave a fine exhibition drill in full dress uniform, and afterwards a squad of 10 men, under Sergt. Langston, from this company, executed a zouave drill that was very interesting. The Bloomdale Rifles, under Capt. Bryant, also went through a silent drill in splendid shape, and called forth much applause. The dress parade in the evening was unusually fine, and was witnessed by hundreds of visitors.

On Saturday the regiment went through a sham battle, the like of which has never before taken place in the National guard of Ohio. It will go down in history as the Battle of Fay's Farm, and will probably prove to be the forerunner of like maneuvers at all militia encampments hereafter.

It was fought out in the country in the same manner as a genuine battle, and as neither side knew what the other was up to it kept the officers on their mettle and proved an excellent drill for the men.

The plans of the battle were kept a profound secret by Col. Howe and not even the commanders of the two divisions knew what was up until just before the alarm was sounded Saturday morning. Col. Howe called Lieut. Colonel Collins into headquarters and in the strictest secrecy told him that he had received information that an armed body of men were intending to tear up the C, H. & D. railroad tracks at a point about a mile from camp and he wanted him to be in readiness to take a provisional battalion at a moment's notice and prevent this.

Soon after he imparted the same information to Major Clen Denning, but did not let on what he had told Colonel Collins, and by this means he had the two commanders nerved up to the highest pitch, for they did not know but that they were going into real battles. In the meantime orders had been issued to the captains to report their men for duty, in heavy marching order, and with one meal's rations. Four companies were to report to Col. Collins and five to Major Clen Denning.

About 10 o'clock the long roll was sounded and not until then did the colonel state his real plans to the two commanders. They were to take different roads to reach the same objective point on the railroad at Fay's farm and there the skirmish was to take place, while each commander was to see if he could out-maneuver the other. Col. Howe established field headquarters and acted as general of both armies. The battalion commanders, however, were placed upon their own resources and were to send couriers to the colonel every half hour reporting the movements they had made. They were also to receive orders from him.

The long roll was the scene of the greatest excitement in camp. Companies were hurriedly formed, knapsacks were strapped on, ammunition was portioned out, and in a few minutes the two battalions were on the march. Each went a different direction, and both had a march of about three miles to reach the spot where it was expected to meet the enemy. The colonel marched to a good position in the field, where he would be as convenient as possible for both sides, and many citizens followed the troops to view the skirmish.

Major Clen Denning soon came to a stream, and in order to get his troops over it was necessary to build a pontoon bridge. This was done, and the result of the work composed the first report from the field recorded by the colonist.

Col. Collins' forces reached the railroad first and entrenched themselves in a strong position to resist attack. The enemy was soon upon them, however, and then the maneuvers of a real battle commenced. The skirmish lines of the two armies came together in a cornfield and from that time the battle lasted nearly two hours.

During this time each command had scouts out and kept up a continuous communication with headquarters.

All of the orderlies were not able to complete their mission for the reason that several were captured by the watchful scouts of both armies. Several squads were also made prisoners.

As was before stated the two lines of battle came together on Fay's farm, and here the fighting was extremely hot until the ammunition nearly gave out, upon which the battle was declared a draw and the troops withdrawn.

After the fight, and when the troops had been returned to their quarters, the different captains made written reports of the battle, and Col. Collins and Maj. Clen Denning each made a report to the colonel, stating all the movements that had been made and the results of the fight.

Col. Howe was much pleased with the sham battle and its results. "It was a splendid drill for the officers," said he, "and of a character that cannot be gained by a skirmish drill on the parade ground. Neither one knew what the other was up to, and they were given an idea of how they would be obliged to act in actual service and before a hostile enemy.

The officers, especially the two commanders, were very much in earnest, and took every opportunity to gain an advantage over his opponent, and also exhibited much skill in manouvering. The men also were in dead earnest and held themselves very steady. From my observations during this event I think that the battle of Fay's Farm will be of great benefit to the whole regiment, and I shall have a similar sham battle at every camp hereafter. I think the plan should be adopted by the whole National Guard."

Col. Collins and Maj. Clen Denning were of the same opinion, and expressed themselves as much pleased.

Captain McMaken, of the cadets, who viewed the fight from the top of a tree, considered it one of the finest maneuvers ever executed by the national guard, as did also Captain Kirk, the inspector of rifle practice for the regiment, and a very efficient officer. This event has been the talk of the camp and of the town.

Cadets Captured.

The visiting squad of the Toledo Cadets made their second attack on the militia of Ohio yesterday. The besieged this time was the Second Regiment encamped in the fair grounds at Bowling Green. Leaving Toledo Saturday night at 11:40 via C. H. & D., we arrived at "Tontogany" soon after midnight; still six miles from camp, and being in heavy marching order and time precious an ambulance was pressed into service with the owner as driver. Being assured his life was valueless if the slightest resistance was offered, and his fears being kept up by strains of such suggestive songs as "Dont cher Hear dem Bells" and "He's in the Asylum Now."

After a forced drive of an hour we came in sight of the fortifications, but as we did not know the encampment's strength and how heavy they (the guns) might be loaded, the attack was postponed till morning. Our first duty after reville was breakfast in our own camp (The New Ross House.)

Corporal Raymer then advanced himself as skirmisher and marched to the front to engage the enemy.

On nearing the fortifications he was greatly surprised to find the outer works entirely deserted, and thinking to gain glory and possibly "captain's bars," he marched forward intending to capture the position and when the balance of the command arrived receive the congratulations of his men, but, alas, he looked for too much. Past the company quarters straight to the tent of the colonel. Thinking victory complete he stepped in to take possession, immediately he was seized and disarmed; then as a warning came a discharge of "heavy ordnance," which so thoroughly frightened the corporal he consented to sign a parole. On being shown to quarters his surprise may be imagined when he there saw his own captain and Capt. Roulet, both under parole, also war correspondent Wilson of the BEE. The balance of the squad consisting of Sergeant Welson, Corporal "Annie" Pixley, and Privates Schmidt and Phillips, not knowing the fate of their predecessors, soon were seen advancing on headquarters and did not surmise their danger until a volley from the heavy guns so thinned their ranks that resistance was useless and they surrendered, being at once paroled.

Our quarters were in Dr. Yonker's tent, and were certainly as pleasant as one could wish. Adjutant Youker as an entertainer ranks as a "General," much of our pleasant visit being due to his efforts. After dinner with the Doctor we saw some splendid drilling by the Lima City Guards, Bloomdale Rifles and a platoon from the Guards, in a laughable zouave drill; all of the drills spoke well for the hard work the companies have been doing. We had an invitation from the Colonel to lunch at 3 p. m., but in some way we all lost our page and were left. This is the only sad recollection we have. About 4 o'clock the band gave a concert and the music was certainly something out of the ordinary; as one of boys remarked it was "out of sight."

Directly before supper, which we took with the Colonel, we saw dress parade, the first some of us ever saw, have been in them many times, but this one the first when we were "not in it."

The parade certainly was a magnificent sight and the companies all made an excellent appearance.

Although we had all been paroled and were constantly in range of the "heavy guns," the doctor feared we might make a break and so detailed three of his efficient orderlies (Miss Teuff and the Misses Taber) to keep a constant watch of all our movements and wherever we went an orderly had to accompany us. This of course must have been very wearisome to the orderlies, although we enjoyed it immensely. The evening was passed in visiting the officers and saying good-bye and listening to sweet music by fair songsters. At 3 a. m. we took another ride from camp to Tontogany, where we had to wait an hour for our train. It finally came, and after a short ride we were again at home.

Thus endeth our second lesson.

ONE OF THE SQUAD.

Light Charges.

Natural gas was most convenient for the cooks.

The ladies showed great interest in the fight and at times became greatly excited.

Adjutant Campbell has taken unto himself a wife and she accompanied him to camp.

The regiment band favored the camp and visitors with a delightful concert Saturday evening.

Two men were slightly scorched by powder during the sham fight, but their injuries are not serious.

The regiment is now composed of nine companies, one more than the number in camp at Presque Isle.

The regiment is highly pleased with the treatment accorded them by the citizens of Bowling Green and vicinity.

Company G, of Kenton, had 75 men in camp, this being 100 per cent. of the membership, the best attendance in camp.

Capt. Long, "Comanche Dick," makes a great officer of the day. He made the colonel put out his lights Saturday night.

The regiment had intended to visit Toledo to-day, but finally concluded to save the money and buy dress uniforms for next year.

There is great rivalry between Col. Collins and Major Clen Denning, not only as to who won the battle of Fay's Farm, but as to who is the most popular ladies' man in camp.

Four different companies claim the honor of capturing Capt. Kuert, of Company G, during the battle, when in reality he was not captured at all.

Toledoans who visited the camp will remember genial and happy "Col." Brick, who looked after the wants of the guests so well and will be glad to hear of his advancement. Last year Brick had charge of the gatling gun, but now he has been put in charge of the heavy artillery and wears the stripes and chevrons of an ordnance sergeant.

THE RUSSIAN UKASE.

The ukase of the czar forbidding the exportation of rye derives its chief significance from the fact that rye is almost as important an article of food in Europe as it is an article of drink in this country.—Boston Herald.

The ukase of the Russian government forbidding the export of rye has called attention to the scarcity of this cereal. The crop has fallen so short of its usual proportions that it is doubtful whether there will be enough to supply the home demand.—N. Y. Telegram.

And so the czar may learn that he who wages commercial war is liable to hurt himself more than his enemy. And possibly this experience may teach American farmers the same lesson and lead them to demand freer trade with the new customers they are in a fair way to get in consequence of imperial folly.—Chicago Herald.

America resumes her supremacy and Russia, frightened at the possibilities, forbids by imperial ukase the sale of rye, with which it was only too glad to part a year ago. At the same time poor, bewildered Portugal tries to help out the farmers there by prohibiting the importation of rye until the home crop is disposed of.—Mail and Express.

The immediate effect of the ukase has been to raise the price of rye in Germany, which country draws its supply to a great extent from Russia, and its influence will be felt further in a general increase in the price of breadstuffs and a greater demand for wheat. The prospect is that of distress, especially for Germany, where the government is yet obstinate in its refusal to reduce the import duties on grain.—Wheeling Register.

The czar's ukase prohibiting the exportation of rye from Russia is creating great apprehension in the eastern parts of Austria and portions of Germany, and not a little distress among the poor is already reported. There is a great opportunity for America in this situation. Wheat has always been too expensive a grain for consumption among the European peasantry, but corn could be sold in Europe at a price which would make it an article of universal use. It is more nutritive than rye and can be served in many more forms.—Chicago Times.

The high tariff oracles ought to be delighted with the Russian ukase forbidding the export of rye. That is, they ought to be delighted on Germany's account. Here is a great nation whose corn laws are already stringent, excepting as to one cereal, and now through the kind attention of another great nation even that cereal is put in a position to be developed at home, and the tariff is, so to speak, rounded out. If the McKinley bill could make tin grow in American rocks which before its passage were innocent of such a metal, the Russian ukase ought certainly to be able to make rye grow in Germany. Yet in defiance of this admitted function of the tariff system the Germans seem to be seriously afraid of starving.—Philadelphia Times.

More Corn.

The indications for this year are that Kansas will raise more corn and less political sheol.—Washington Post.

McKinley's Troubles.

Paucity of gold is troubling Mr. McKinley more than parity of silver.—New York World.

Not only was the late Comtesse de Chambrun a great patron of music and art, but her husband, who has been blind for the last five years, is also. HOUSEKEEPERS ARE WARNED against the impositions of a company of females, who, under the lead of a male agent, are now infesting the kitchens of this city, performing a trick which they pretend is a test of baking powders.

It having been intimated that these persons are the paid agents of the Royal Baking Powder Company, this is to advise all concerned that this Company has no relation whatever to them, that their so-called test is a sham, and that the females are instructed and employed to perform these tricks and make false statements in all kitchens to which they can gain access, by concerns who are trying to palm off upon housekeepers an inferior brand of baking powder through the operation of fallacious and deceptive methods.

The Royal Baking Powder Company in no case employs such agents, and whenever the name of this Company is used to gain entrance to houses, the applicant, no matter how respectable in appearance, should be regarded and treated as an imposter.

BALLADE OF A LOVER.

In the greenest of meadows, by bluest of brooks,
Surrounded by lambkins abnormally snowy,
Sit, marked by beribboned and garlanded and
crooks,
Stephen and Chloe;
While the half-whetted scythe and the over-turned pail,
The bush on a cheek that is ripe as a cherry,
Betoken as signs that were ne'er known to fail,
Robin and Mary.

From Claude-like scenes in the classic books,
From songs like Lord Byron's conventional Zoe,
Peer out with affected and simpering looks,
Stephen and Chloe;
While fresh from a Hardy or Blackmore tale,
A-singing a roundel of "Derry-down-derry,"
Come, breathing the odors of meadow and dale,
Robin and Mary.

ENVOY.

It has been claimed that the seeds taken from ancient Egyptian tombs are capable of growth, but proof of the claim is lacking. It has been demonstrated, however, that seeds of a very great age are capable of development. Raspberries have been raised from seed taken from the stomach of a man who died during the time of the Emperor Hadrian, who reigned in the second century of our era. Think of it, a seed springing into new life after lying dormant sixteen centuries.

Within thirty miles of New York, in the mountains of Rockland county, is wilder life than can be found in most states west of the Mississippi. There are settlements of charcoal burners, and colonies of Indians and negroes of mixed blood that it would not be safe to visit without a guide. In the library of the Moravian school for boys at Nazareth, Pa., which was founded in 1741 and whose sessions since were interrupted only for a brief period by the revolution, is a series of quaint old volumes containing the compositions, graduating colloquies and essays, together with sketches in pencil made by scholars whose hands became dust half a century ago. The main building of the school on the academic green is the stone Pomeranian "castle" erected by Count Zinzendorf in what was then the wilderness of Pennsylvania, and which attracted many curious visitors in the last century.

CHAT ABOUT THE CIRCUS.

A Bee Accompanies the Press Agent

Through the Menagerie and Learns Something About Animals, Also of the Actors.

When writing about the circus it is always customary to say something about the small boy, so it might be well to mention him early in the performance, that he may not feel in any way slighted. Suffice to say he was out early in full force Saturday on the occasion of the appearance of the Barnum-Bailey show in this city. The oldest inhabitant states that he never before saw him in such numbers, sizes and varieties as he did on this last occasion. Children of a larger growth were also attracted in masses toward the big tented city, for the circus is the magic wand that rubs away care and wrinkles and makes the people young once again. The Barnum-Bailey circus is a great show beyond a doubt, and nearly 25,000 people hereabouts appreciated this fact and attended the two performances in Toledo.

While the late P. T. Barnum was a great showman, still the public must not forget that for the last twelve years of his life he was not capable of giving much attention to the big circus, and this great work fell on the able shoulders of his partner, J. A. Bailey, who has carried on the enterprise, and built it up to its present magnitude. According to provisions of Mr. Barnum's will, the circus will continue to exist as at present for 47 years to come, so the coming generation and the small boy of the future are assured of the pleasant anticipations and realizations enjoyed by the small boy of the past and present.

Frank L. Perley, the press agent of the Barnum-Bailey show, is a very clever gentleman, and what he don't know about the circus wouldn't be worth putting on the bills. He conducted a BEE through the menagerie and rattled off something like the following as the various cages were passed:

"That is a Mexican dog in the monkey cage and, like the dogs of that country, is hairless. He used to have quarters in the cook's tent, but one day he overturned a pan of batter, and as a punishment was banished to his present abode, where he has made himself boss of the roost, and woe be unto a monk that don't walk chalk in his presence.

"That ugly looking beast," continued Mr. Perley, pointing to the wart hog, "is the homeliest specimen in the animal kingdom; still he is something of a dude, for he has nice bangs hanging down over his eyes. His next door neighbor is the tapir, who has an unusually long nose and happily knows enough to keep it out of other people's business. This is about all he does know, for although formidable looking he hasn't the first idea of self defense and would be a great mark for monte men and thimble riggers.

"Those Siberian wolf pups have just been taken from their mother, for you know most wild animals in captivity eat their young. Those fallow deer shed their horns three months ago and the elegant head gear that now adorns them has grown out in that time. Their horns, I think, actually grow at the rate of an inch a day.

"Perhaps you think that a hippotamus don't really sweat blood; perhaps you think that statement is just another circus lie put on the bills, but I assure you that he does. Just step up nearer to the cage and you will see all over his body, about an inch apart, good sized pores from which trickle tiny streams of blood. Upon his back it has clotted over the pores and looks like little raised blotches. A peculiar thing about another big friend, the elephant is that he never sweats except around the toes. The rest of his noble person is as dry and crusty as a bachelor or so much sun-baked mud. The elephants commonly exhibited in circuses are from 5 to 25 years old. They live to be 150. The tusks grow about three inches a year. They are sawed off without pain to the animal and the ends tipped with brass. You would be surprised at the amount of paring and cutting an elephant can undergo without feeling it. Twice a year we pare their feet and slice off chunks as if you were cutting bread, still to the beast it is nothing more than if you were trimming your finger nails.

"Did you ever know that a giraff can't grunt. He is as dumb as an oyster and I guess is the only animal thus afflicted. See those hyenas! They are the meanest brutes ever constructed. With their enormous jaws they can crush a larger bone than a lion, but they lack the strength of limb and body to carry such loads as does the king of beasts, in his mouth. Over there is a Bengal tiger, the largest we have ever been able to secure. He has been out of the jungle but seven months only, yet he is much more tame than some born and reared in captivity."

So Mr. Perley rattled on, telling about the black leopard who had spots like any other leopard that were distinguishable when the light struck his body just right; about the kangaroo and kangaroo tail soup; the rhinoceros who had worn off his horn rubbing it against a sheet of iron in the end of the cage, and a thousand other things, after which the BEE passed on to the big tent.

An army of people appear in Nero, and half of this army are women. Last year the management had considerable difficulty with its ballet girls, as late in the season they all left to go with theatrical companies for a winter engagement. This season, however, things are changed, and the girls have been brought from Milan, Italy, and they will be sent back at the end of the season. Most of the girls refuse to come unless they had a male escort, so fathers, brothers, cousins and lovers came along, and were all utilized in Nero. The girls are recent graduates of the ballet schools in Milan, and an instructor accompanies them. Their salary is about $18 a week, including board, which is much more than they could make in Italy.

Everyone noticed the little Italian boy, Nicholas Ceballos, who performed on the high wire. He is but 15 years old, and is a wonder. The Japanese are clever on the wire, but they use an umbrella to balance themselves and wear divided stockings, while the little Italian walks unaided on flat soled slippers. He was found in Madrid.

The three Meers sisters, who do the riding acts, are English girls. The management had tried on a number of occasions to bring them to this country, but they would not come, as their father was interested in the show business in England. Finally the father sold out his show and consented to bring the girls over at a salary of $800 a week and the expenses of their parents. The oldest sister is 20, the youngest 16 years of age. They brought their own horses from England.

One of the best acts of the show was the performance of the dog-faced baboon on an Abyssinian donkey. The baboon was trained by the veteran, Wm. Conrad, and does wonders. He rolls off backwards, turns somersaults from his steed to the ground, and also turns them on the donkey's back, stands on his hands and rides, in fact does more and better tricks than any man could. The baboon is as large as a small boy, and is a handsome animal as monks go.

Perhaps the public is not aware that the hippodrome races are really bona fide contests, but they are. Some time ago it was found that the drivers did not take enough interest in the races, and the events were getting tame. It was decided to put up prizes of a few dollars for each race, and it works like a charm. The money is worth getting, and the men and women try their level best to secure it.

The show is full of new and good features and a newspaper article couldn't commence to tell the half.

BAD ECZEMA ON BABY
Head One Solid Sore. Itching Awful. Had to Tie His Hands to Cradle. Cured by Cuticura.

Our little boy broke out on his head with a bad form of eczema when he was four months old. We tried three doctors, but they did not help him. We then used your three CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using them eleven weeks exactly according to directions, he began to steadily improve, and after the use of them for seven months his head was entirely well. When we began using them his head was a solid sore from the crown to the eyebrows. It was also all over his ears, most of his face, and small places on different parts of his body. There were sixteen weeks that we had to keep his hands tied to the cradle and hold them when he was taken up, and had to keep mittens on his hands to keep his finger nails out of the sores, as he would scratch if he could in anyway get his hands loose. We know your CUTICURA REMEDIES cured him. We feel safe in recommending them to others.

FOR THE TOILET
There is no more useful or elegant article than Ayer's Hair Vigor—the most popular and economical hair-dressing in the market. It causes the hair to grow abundantly and retain the beauty and texture of youth; prevents baldness, heals troublesome humors of the scalp and keeps it clean, cool, and healthy. Both ladies and gentlemen everywhere prefer Ayer's Hair Vigor to any other dressing for the hair. Mrs. Lydia O. Moody, E. Pittston, Me., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for some time, and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and falling hair, so that I was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor, my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recommend the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor to any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair."

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of Ohio.

TAXATION.

SECTION 1. Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, That a proposition shall be submitted to the electors of this State on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1891, to amend section 2, of Article XII, of the Constitution of the State of Ohio, so that it shall read as follows:

ARTICLE XII.

SECTION 2. Laws may be passed which shall tax by a uniform rule all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint-stock companies, or otherwise; and all real and personal property according to the true value thereof in money. In addition thereto, laws may be passed taxing rights, privileges, franchises and such other subject matters as the legislature may direct; but burying grounds, public school houses, houses used exclusively for public worship, institutions of purely public charity, public property used exclusively for any public purpose, and other property, may, by general laws, be exempted from taxation; and the value of all property so exempted shall, from time to time, be ascertained and published as may be directed by law.

SECTION 2. At such election, those electors desiring to vote for such amendment may have placed upon their ballots the words "Taxation Amendment—Yes," and those opposed to such amendment may have placed upon their ballots the words "Taxation Amendment—No."

SECTION 3. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January, 1892.

Life and Death Hanging on a Game.

The Coolness With Which a Russian Prince Ended His Life—He Could Not Endure the Thought of Having Cheated at Cards.

These Russians are certainly differently constituted from us. With their temperament of refined civilization and savage barbarism they do the most astounding things in the most unexpected way.

It was thus Boris Mirskow amazed me yesterday by relating in the coolest, most nonchalant manner the strange end of his flirtation with the Princess de Z—.

Now this handsome blonde Boris is a delightful comrade, charming, suave, with the doll-baby face of a woman, the last one in the world I would ever imagine such a wild, extraordinary adventure could happen to. It makes me shudder to think of it.

"You knew the Prince de Z—," he said: "at least you knew him by reputation. A cripple from birth, nailed to his chair, he had but one passion in life—gambling. His feeble hands had barely strength sufficient to hold and shuffle the cards. In return his head was extremely cool, his intelligence more than ordinarily clear. No one knew better than he the combinations of ecarte. He was called the Moltke of gamblers.

"As to the Princess, what Parisian does not know her and her history? When I was taken into her favor they said I was the twentieth, only counting the distinguished ones.

"The prince took everything in the most philosophical manner. He made a point of seeing nothing. When they spoke of a deceived husband before him he would always ask, 'Was he aware of it? Did he know it?' If they answered 'No,' then he would say, 'He was not deceived; it is in this as in play; one is not deceived if he doesn't know it.'

"If the prince was the Von Moltke of ecarte, the princess was the Robert Houdin of coquetry.

"There are no jugglers so skillful but what they miss the mark sometimes. Our mischance was caused by malevolence.

"The princess has a favorite maid, a Tzigane, as devoted as a tame panther, but, alas, a cruel panther still.

"One evening as this girl was showing me to the boudoir of her mistress she said (I don't know why), 'I love you.' I burst out laughing. She repeated, 'I love you, and have loved you a long time. I am determined you shall not see the princess any more.'

"In spite of her sharp accents and the savage light in her yellow eyes, I could only see her ugly, tawny face, and laughed more and more, gently repulsing her, for I thought she had taken too much koumiss and felt very indulgent to her fault, as my own head was a little astray from too much champagne.

"'You will not listen to me,' she said, clinging to my arm and kissing my hand.

"As I laughed still more, she suddenly raised up, grinding her teeth, and said in a low, determined tone as she threw open door of the boudoir, 'You will repent this, monsieur.'

"An hour later as I was sitting beside the princess on a grand divan, covered with blue fox, we heard a great clamor in the ante-room which preceded the boudoir. 'It is the voice of the prince. Can it be possible?' said the princess. Yes, it was the voice of the prince, exclaiming in sharp tones: 'Come, put me down; you are mad; you make me ill. Put me down, I tell you.'

"Other voices were heard, a confused noise of cries and approaching footsteps but above all this buzzing uproar could be heard the furious falsetto of the screching Tzigane. 'Don't dare to touch me, not one of you. If you do, I will strangle him. Quick, open the door.'

"The door was violently thrown open. About a dozen people entered the room, friends of the family and domestics, Tzigane in the midst of them carrying the prince in her arms like a puny child. I understood it all. In her fit of rage, with the violence of a tempest whirling a broken leaf, she had brought the prince here by main force and, throwing him on the floor, howled, 'Now see for yourself. Say, do you see?'

"'Seize her,' said the prince, 'and send her to the mines.'

"'What does that matter?' she cried, holding her wrists for the manacles. 'What do I care now that I am revenged!' Then turning to me she added: 'I told you I would never allow you to see the princess again.'

"They raised the prince and placed him in an armchair. He ordered every one to leave the room except two friends he begged to remain, then turning to me said:

"'I could kill you, monsieur, as I have a right to do. But I do not wish to punish you in that way. I demand reparation by arms.'

"I had a desire to laugh. A duel with that poor cripple! and what kind of a duel, as he could hold neither sword no pistol in his feeble hands.

"The prince understood my thoughts and replied: 'Do not think me mad or more generous than I am. The duel I offer you is very possible, as you will see.' Touching a bell a servant entered.

"'Go and bring me a pack of cards from the saloon,' he said.

"When the cards were brought and the arm-chair of the prince had been drawn up to the table, he motioned me to a seat, and with a calm, almost affable air, said: 'We are now going to play a game of cards, monsieur, and the one who loses shall kill himself before 12 o'clock to-morrow. Do you accept mon cher?'

"'I accept. What game shall we play?' 'Ecarte, if you please.' 'So it be. For how many points?' 'Five.'

"The game commenced, witnessed by the two friends and the princess, who drew near, drawn in spite of herself by the singularity of the strange duel.

"The prince was my master, that was plainly to be seen, but chance favored me in the most striking way. Soon we were 4 to 4."

"Parbleu," said I to Boris, "no need to finish your story. I guess it; as you are here the prince lost."

"Not at all; the prince won."

"But, how"—

My lip curled with scorn, for I thought Boris had been too cowardly to carry out the wager. He smiled maliciously, and continued:

"Hold, read this, which I received a quarter of an hour after the game, as I was examining the chambers of my revolver."

He handed me an ace of hearts, upon which the prince had written:

MONSIEUR—According to my theory you have not been cheated, as you did not perceive it. But I feel from this time it will be impossible for me to touch cards after having dishonored them, and to live without them I cannot. I cheated awhile ago, monsieur, for the first and last time in my life. We were four to four. I made a king appear. Pardon me. I shall now make a prince disappear.

The next day before 12 o'clock the prince was dead.—New York Recorder.

ICE-WATER FOR A BRIDE.

Terrible Mistake Which Made a Cincinnati Man Unpopular

"The funniest experience I ever had," said Col. L. A. Leonard, of Cincinnati, "was during a visit I recently made to New York in company with my sister. We went to the Grand Union hotel, and I requested the clerk to give us a couple of adjoining rooms.

"I understood the clerk to say that we were assigned to rooms 99 and 101. We were conducted to the rooms and I was shown to 99. Shortly afterward my sister informed me that she could not succeed in getting any one to answer the bell, and requested me to ring mine and order a pitcher of ice-water for her. I rang, and requested the boy who responded, to take a pitcher of ice-water to room 101. Before going down stairs, a few minutes later, I asked my sister if she received the ice-water, and was informed that she had not. I rang again and told the second boy to take a pitcher of ice-water to room 101, and went below and soon returned, and was surprised to learn that no ice-water had been delivered in my sister's room.

"By that time I was interested, and told my sister that I would see that she got some ice-water if I had to go after it myself. So I rang once more and told the bellboy that a pitcher of ice-water must be taken to room 101 right away, and he said that he would surely attend to it.

"After waiting some time I made inquiry of my sister again, and she said that no ice-water had come, and begged me not to bother myself about it, as it seemed to be a hopeless task. But I replied that water was cheap and she should have some sure. I went to the person in charge of our corridor and preferred a request that a pitcher of ice-water be sent to room 101. I received a promise that it should be attended to instanter. But it wasn't.

"My next attempt was to prevail upon the elevator-boy to take a pitcher of ice-water to room 101. He declared that he would do so on the next trip.

"He failed. In despair I went to the office of the hotel and asked the clerk if it were possible to have a pitcher of ice-water sent to room 101.

"'Certainly,' was the answer; 'that can be done without any trouble.'

"'I have been trying to get it done ever since I came here, and I haven't made the riffle yet,' I said, 'and if it is a possible thing I would like to have it done.'

"Later I stepped into the elevator, and the boy there asked me if I were going up to the 101 floor.

"'Yes,' I responded. 'Why?'

"'A hundred and one will throw you out of the window if he catches you,' said the boy.

"'What are you talking about?' I asked.

"'Why, there is a bride and groom in 101 and you have been firing ice-water in their room all evening, and the man is wild. He swears he will murder you.'

"Upon investigation I found that my sister's room was not 101 at all, but was 97. My room was 99, and as my sister's room was next to it I thought it was 101. There I had sent about ten pitchers of ice-water to 101, and didn't know it.

"I had left a call in the office for 99 and 101 for 4 o'clock the next morning when I was going down stairs last, and never thought to have it changed. So at 4 o'clock the bride and groom were awakened by a thundering knock at the door, which made them furious, and they were firmly persuded that the early call was a part of the ice-water fiend's scheme to annoy them.

"I escaped with my life and was glad of it."—New York Morning Journal.

BETWEEN THE ACTS.

Japanese Get Lots of Fun Out of Theater Going.

The first thing that strikes a stranger's eye on entering a Japanese theatre is the vast rack upon which hang gela, the wooden clogs of the spectators. There is one gallery extending around three sides of the square auditorium.

The main floor is divided into stalls about five feet square, carpeted with matting, and separated by a railing about a foot high. The stage is raised about a yard above the floor, and its principal feature is a revolving circle. On this two scenes are set at once, back to back, and a revolution of the table shifts the scene speedily and without drawing the curtain.

On one side of the proscenium is a box reserved for the police, and on the other is a raised platform for the orchestra. A full orchestra is composed of nine members.

Extending through the audience from the back, and on the left side of the audience to the stage, is a broad open way, raised about two feet above the main floor. This way is employed as an entrance when the actor is supposed to come from a long distance, or enters in a kago or jurikisha, or in haste, or is knocking at the other gate for admittance. On the opposite side of the auditorium is another way, employed for similar purposes.

The curtains run on guiding strings from right to left. One curtain the writer saw at the Shintomi theatre was of white silk and painted all over with exquisite representations of the human eye.

While the Japanese do not employ the mechanical accessories and extensive scenes which characterize our theatres, in the minor details the accuracy of the imitation is remarkable in its realism beyond anything we see at home.

When an actor enters on a rany day his umbrella and his clogs are wet; if he falls into lake or river, when he reappears on the stage the fact that he is soaked is evident.

I can recall a certain swamp scene which was the most complete setting I ever saw on any stage, says a traveler. Almost all the accessories were real—the rushes, the reeds, grass, trees—all except the distance, which was painted.

The leaves were stirring, and the blades of grass waving to and fro in the gentle breeze. The croaking of the frogs was so well done as to be impossible to be distinguished from nature. Then was heard the wailing note of a certain bird, whose cry in Japan always betokens rain.

In a few minutes it became darker, the pattering of the falling drops were heard, and then it rained actual water.

In costuming, the stage of Japan has no equal. Some of the robes of the great actors are very old and of priceless value. The aim of the actor is to identify his own personality with the character he portrays, and he will shirk from no hardship or study to make it real.

When a man is supposed to be killed in battle it is en regle for him to turn a somersault when he receives his death blow. Children never speak in a natural voice, always in a high, affected, piping monotone, absolutely without inflection.

On every stage is to be seen a black figure, always crouching, and with a hood entirely covering the head, and who seemingly has no connection with the play. He is called Kuromboo, black man, and is supposed to be invisible. He is the prompter, and performs all manner of trivial services for the actors.

Performances generally begin in the forenoon and continue without interval until evening, and sometimes go up to within an hour of midnight. The entire face is an interesting scene.

The little lads play a game of tag up and down the hana-michi on the stage, running in and out behind and before the curtain with merry shouts and laughter. Their elders meanwhile blowing up the glowing coals in the hibachi, and soon the hot water is ready for the infusion of fragrant tea.

And so it goes until the sounding of the two sticks of wood, sharply rapped together gives signal that the play is about to begin again. The interior of all the theatres are rude and unsightly.

The sombreness of the blue that is the characteristic color of the dress of the mass of playgoers is relieved towards evening by bits of color in the kimonos of the geisha and of the denizens of the poshiwarn, who then put in their appearance.

Applase by clapping of the hands is becoming common, but it is a modern innovation. Satisfaction is proclaimed by shouting out the name of the actor, or by the words, "Ten riyo, 1,000 riyo" (a riyo is a yen, a silver dollar, 80 cents.) Approval of the cash value of the acting in the estimation of the crier.—N. Y. Morning Journal.

Miss Callie McGee, a school teacher of America, a mountain town of Kentucky, while returning home the other day with a little girl pupil, encountered a bear. Brain was quite a distance behind Miss McGee, but he started after her. Picking up her charge she ran at full speed, taking off articles of clothing and dropping them from time to time in order to divert the animal's attention from her, thereby gaining that much on him. She finally reached a farm house in safety, and, procuring a rifle, opened fire on the bear, which then had reached the pig pen, killing him. He weighed 287 pounds.

A KING WITH A CAPITAL "K." "THE MERRY MONARCH."

A remedy which is "every inch a King," and worthy of the grateful homage and admiration of its Sixty Million American Subjects, is

HIBBARD'S "HERB EXTRACT,"

Its throne is in the tuneful hearts of hundreds of thousands of its users, who sing its praises and carry its renown from ocean to ocean. Join the throng and help shout the glad tidings of a people ransomed from the galling chains and terrible captivity of

HEREDITARY SCROFULA.

It's not the discovery of a heaven guided tramp, but an honest remedy with which one of the most skillful physicians of his day cured Mrs. Hibbard, over forty-five years ago, after she had been most terribly afflicted by hereditary blood disease, which consumed her nose and other parts of her face, and since her cure, (over forty-six years ago,) she has made the placing of this remedy before the public her life-long work. A circular giving a short history of her case will be sent on application.

It is not a cure-all, but is positively guaranteed in all cases of Blood and Skin diseases, such as Scrofula, Cancer, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, and Kidney and Liver Complaints. The remedy contains neither Mercury or Potash, but its properties are purely vegetable and harmless.

As a powerful invigorating Tonic, it helps the stomach and imparts strength and vitality to the entire system.

Mrs. Hibbard's reputation at home and abroad is sufficient evidence of her honesty of purpose. Although sixty-five years of age, she devotes her entire time to the alleviation of human suffering. Call on her or write, describing your case, and she will give you an honest opinion, and advice free of charge. The "Herb Extract" is for sale by all Druggists, at $1.00 per bottle, 6 for $5.00, or sent by express on receipt of price.

THE GATE OF SLEEP.

Lying between the dusk and dawn of night,
Upon the borders of the sea of sleep,
Lo, oft there cometh in the fading light
The break of surges in the eternal deep.

The soul of me swims out across the space
That yawns beneath the pulse of life and
The senses fail; the spirit seeks its place
With those that dwell beyond the gates of breath.
A touch, a start: the passing power is broken:
The soul is moveless midway in the flight;
The body claims it, and there is no token
Brought from out that haven of the night.

If I could hold the light that on me grows
When o'er the brink of sleep my spirit speeds,
Then could I voice the mystery that flows
'Twixt life and death, 'tween truth and human creeds.

But lo! upon the sacred door of sleep
There's a graven law of import high:
"He who would sound the secrets of this deep Must lay him down in solitude to die."
—W. J. Henderson.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Gooseberry Mildew—How Prevented.

This fungus has for the past three years been successfully combatted. At the New York agricultural experiment station, Geneva, fine crops of gooseberries have been grown entirely free from mildew. The success has been so marked as to attract the attention of a number of leading fruit growers. The practice at this station is to begin spraying as soon as the young leaves unfold, and continue the spraying at intervals of from 18 to 20 days. In case of frequent, heavy rains it will be necessary to spray more often. The fungicide used is potassium sulphide, liver of sulphur; formula, on half ounce dissolved in one gallon of water. If hot water is used, the sulphide will dissolve more readily. As commercial liver of sulphur costs but little, from 15 to 20 cents a pound, and one gallon will spray ten or twelve large bushes, if applied with a force-pump and spraying nozzle, it will be seen that the largest cost will be that of labor. If spraying is done with a syringe on a small number of plants, the amount of liquid necessary will be increased, of course; but, however lavish one is with the solution, the beneficial results will more than compensate for the outlay. The few fruit growers who continue to grow gooseberries claim that they are one of their most remunerative crops, as the markets are almost always destitute of them, and buyers are willing to pay almost any price for bright, clean fruit. To test the matter of prices for superior fruit, a five-pound basket of several varieties was picked at fruiting time last year and taken to a leading grocer of Geneva who sold them as follows: The basket containing the large varieties bringing 50 cents, those containing the medium and small varieties bringing 40 cents. The grocer stated that he could dispose of a large quantity at these prices. The average yield of the 3-year old plants was over five pounds per plant, and as by setting plants four by four feet, 2,722 can be grown on an acre, the results would have been a yield of 13,610 pounds, which, if sold at 25 cents a basket, would have brought the sum of $655. Surely, there is money in gooseberries well taken care of and kept free from mildew. In conclusion, it may be well to say that it is often claimed for certain newer varieties that they are mildew proof; but experience goes to show that, while some varieties are better able to resist the attacks of the mildew, sooner or later they will become afflicted as badly as older sorts.—New York Agricultural Experiment Station.

Honey Dew.

Nature is kind. When one source of honey fails another unlooked for one suddenly springs up. White clover, as a source for honey in this locality, has nearly if not quite failed owing to the severe drouth of preceding years. While walking under some maple trees shading the sidewalk, I noticed upon the brick pavement what appeared to be minute drops of oil, and immediately surmised the presence of honey dew. Scientists tell us, and all observers of nature in her varying moods confirm it, that honey dew is the excretion of multitudes of small insects found on the under side of the leaves of the small branches. The trees most infested are the soft maples, though the sugar maples and box elders, frequently called ash-leaved maples, have a few. The insect belongs to the hemiptera and possess the simple name of pulvinaria innumerabilis. A full description of it is given in the United States agricultural report for 1884, and in the second (1878) report of the state entomologist of Illinois. It is commonly called the cottony maple scale.

If I remember correctly, it was during the season of 1885 that the maple trees were infested with this plague to an alarming extent. On looking up into the trees it was hard to believe that cotton wool had not been entwined along the branches. That year there was white clover honey and it was injured by being spotted with honey dew. This year there is no surplus being gathered from any source, and it is a welcome addition to the bees' larder as it is good food for rearing broods, though poor and unsafe for winter food.—Mrs. L. Harrison in Prairie Farmer.

Feed Systematically.

Cows that are intended for the winter dairy should be fed somewhat in addition to their pasture during the latter part of the season, and not kept upon poor and uncertain autumn pasturage until their milk begins to fail. We know that farmers do not like to begin on the winter forage until the cows are housed for the season, but to save forage by keeping the cows on insufficient or improper feed just at that critical time would be to invite serious loss in the end. Besides preventing a falling off of the milk supply while still on pasture, this gradual change of feed is of value in another way. A change direct from fall pasture to full winter feeding would probably affect the system of the animals so that the milk flow would decrease very much, and it would require patient and careful work to re-establish a normal condition. Feeding for milk is like feeding for flesh, systematic and liberal management is required for cows today in the year in order to produce satisfactory results.—Northwestern Farmer.

Black Teeth in Pigs.

The National Stockman makes this plausible observation in regard to black teeth in pigs: We have examined pigs as soon as farrowed, or at any other time, to know if all had black teeth and have never drawn or knocked out any because the pigs were out of condition. Nor have we ever taken much stock in the theories advance as to black teeth being the cause of unthriftiness, but have looked at the matter in this light, that if they indicated unthriftiness they were the result and not the cause of it. If a pig's blood is out of condition the wound of a white tooth as well as a black one will cause canker sores about the mouth. We used often to have pigs with these sores and have knocked them on the head to end their miserable lives, and to get worthless property off our hands. For a number of years we have not been annoyed in this way, and attribute the immunity wholly to better feeding and sanitary conditions. The diseases incident to the life of a young pig do not come without cause, and the cause in most cases arises from improper treatment of the dam before or after farrowing, or both.

A Farm as a Means of Grace.

The following letter is sent us by a personal friend who has been a long time resident of a city and who has recently hied himself to the country to try "farming." A short time ago he wrote in most glowing terms of his new home and the earthly paradise he had found. Now comes these doleful notes which he heads "A Farm as a Means of Grace."

TO THE EDITOR: "In my former letter I aimed to give you the picturesque and rosy view of my new home. So let me now tell you how the case stands, the esthetic or romancing aspect swept away. "What must be done when the hens get out of the coop and scratch up seeds, flowers and plants promiscuously, or what must be said when planting time your hired man puts the cabbages where you wanted the sweet potatoes, or when he suddenly leaves you in the lurch in the midst of planting and hoeing! Or take this situation, a neighbor's horse walks through your corn patch and bites at random of every hill of the fresh growing plants. Or what will you do if hail strikes your peach trees while in full bloom and cuts off flower and leaf, too! Or if the man who unloaded your firewood first drove his team over your newly planted raspberry vine and sealed up by pitching his load over the few plants his horse and wagon wheels happened to leave untouched! Or if the gutters of your house get out of order, and when the flood came, it swept away the embankment about the house front which was rich with costly plants and far-brought and curious seed! Or what if the potato bug walked over fine plants, or the other bugs went for melons and squashes! Or if you invite a few city friends to a picnic and the night before your servant leaves you! Or if your well goes dry and there is no spring or water nearer than half a mile.

"In fine, as a means of grace a farm, even if only a half acre, cannot be surpassed; one will learn that sweet are the uses of disappointment; how to be resigned when instead of good grapes you have sour.

"It has become a mystery to me how the average farmer stands his luck, and how it is that religion thrives in agricultural communities. With all other trials and woes the seasons are too hot or too cold too long or too short, too wet or too dry. I almost think a truly good farmer must be a sanctified man. Viewed from my standpoint, after more than two months' experience, his life is vicissitude, disappointment and full of lack of success.

"All this, no doubt, tends to give life its true meaning and teaches us the real significance of events. That, as the poet hath it,

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is life's destined end or way,

but the finding in all the affairs of life, whether on the farm, at the office, or in any calling that God doeth well and only well; so that life is always in fact full of benedictions and blessings.—L. Deane, to Farm Field and Fireside.

Feeding Value of Whey.

The Wisconsin agricultural experiment station has just published the result of a series of experiments in feeding whey to pigs. Fair trials were conducted by Prof. Henry during the fall and winter of 1890-91 for the purpose of ascertaining the value of feeding sweet whey, and the conclusions are as follows:

1. We were not successful in maintaining pigs on whey alone.

2. Pigs fed on corn meal and shorts with water required 552 pounds of the mixture for 100 pounds of grain.

3. When whey was added to the corn meal and shorts mixture, it produced a marked saving in the amount of grain required for good gains. This was true for mixtures varying from two pounds of whey to one of grain, up to ten pounds of whey to one of grain.

4th. It was found when using whey as a partial substitute for grain, that 760 lbs. of whey effected a saving of 100 lbs. of the corn meal and shorts mixture.

5th Using these figures, if corn meal and shorts are valued at $12 per ton, then whey is worth eight cents per hundred pounds; at $15 per ton for corn meal and shorts, whey would be worth 10 cents per hundred weight.

6th. Shorts, pea meal and oil meal, or like feeds, should be mixed with whey for showing animals. Some corn may be fed at all times, the proportion increasing as the animal approaches maturity.

Varieties of the Apple.

For the past twenty years or more the Baldwin stood far above all other winter apples for profitable marketing, and in planting new orchards it often constituted a majority. Sometimes it constituted the whole—as in case of the man who, in asking advice for selecting a thousand trees, was recommended to plant 999 Baldwins, and the remaining one—a Baldwin, too. But this work was overdone, and a few years ago planters found that too many had already been set out, before the recent failure of this apple, which has left the Baldwin orchards of western New York destitute of fruit.

It is not improbable that the trees of this variety, which are now growing vigorously, may again be loaded with their abundant crops. But it will not do for orchardists to rely so extensively on one sort. It is true that the successful orchardist depends largely on a few kinds, but his knowledge should extends over a liberal list. There are several reasons why he should inform himself of the character and value of the best, which are adapted to the country. He should have more than one string to his bow. A small select orchard of half an acre or less with a dozen or twenty varieties, will in a few years give the owner just the information he wants. He may find some one which in his particular locality may be of great value. His knowledge of the rest may be of important use to him.

One reason why we so often hear complaints of the impositions of "tree agents," as irresponsible venders are termed, is the want of information on the part of purchasers. They do not happen to know the difference between the counterfeit and the genuine note. More attention to the cultivation of good standard varieties would enable them to know what they want without depending on imposters.

We name a few good varieties of the apple, which are easily procured of reliable nurserymen, and to whom every landowner should have a personal introduction, or to others as good:

Baker, Belmont, Buckingham, Canada Beinette, Champion, Strawberry, Cogswell, Cole's Quince, Danvers Sweet, Dyer, Evening Party, Fanny, Grimes' Golden, Lawyer, McIntosh Red, Mother, Richard's Graft, Smokehouse, Shiawassee, Shockley, Sutton, Wealthy, etc. Such common varieties as Heck's Pleasant, Johnathan, Lowell, Hubbardston and many others should be well known.—Country Gentleman.

Chemical Action in the Soil.

Certain conditions must exist before chemical action can take place. There must be the active principle; that is to say, the attacking or destructive agent, which is generally an acid or an alkili. There must be the passive principle, i. e., the ingredient which contains the fertilizing agent we want to make use of, but which is locked up insolubly in water, and therefore present but useless. There must be also moisture and heat, as chemical action is dead or nearly so when dry and cold. Here are four indispensables; all must be present in the soil or the chemical action cannot take place. As an example, take a fresh manure heap, dry it up to chips and it is inert; but simply moisten it—not soak it—and the principle is set free and begins to work. This action produces heat and thus all the essentials to chemical action being present, the operation goes on till either the moisture fails or the passive material is reduced and the work is done. Now if the proposition between the active material and the passive principle is a true one, the work is completed, the insoluble part is rendered soluble, the whole mass is now fit to feed plants and the only action to take place is to keep sufficient moisture in contact with the humus to make it possible for the plant to imbibe it. The whole of this operation is commonly called rotting. Now, if you will rot down all the rubbish on your farm you will have humas, the result of a chemical process.

Eating Fruit.

The blessing of fruit is sometimes changed to a curse by its injudicious use; as when eaten all hours of the day, whenever one feels any inclination thereto. And this course indulged in often causes sudden attacks of diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera morbus, and sometimes results in death. Dyspepsia, debility and false and varying appetite result frequently from the same cause. How can we best enjoy the tempting fruit? Eat it at regular times, just before and at meals, or soon after them, and it then becomes a part of the regular meal, and is digested with it. And the stomach—that much-abused organ—will then get time to rest between eatings. Remember that only a bite of fruit will require the action of the digestive machinery to digest that, small though it be, and the life forces become overtaxed by such extra work. Order and regularity with the parents will help the children and servants to regularity in eating fruit, too. Discarding the irregularity, but observing the regularity I have indicated, all will enjoy the fullest blessings of the fruit—namely, health and strength.—National Stockman.

How's Your Liver?

A very unnecessary question to ask a man whose skin and eyeballs are saffron-tinted. Of course his tongue, too, is furred, bowels constipated, head bothered with aches, right rib region plagued with constant uneasy sensations. These you may take for granted, although he may not particularize them, because they are among the invariable accompaniments of liver trouble. Are they chronic? If so, you may be sure he does not, as he ought to do, take Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the leading regulator of livers that are out of order. Commend it to him as highly as you please, you can't say a word too much in its behalf. Sick headaches, constipation, nausea, dyspepsia and the yellow hue of the skin speedily depart when this reliable corrective is resorted to. Malaria, rheumatism and la grippe are also among maladies which it remedies and prevents. A wineglassful three times a day confers appetite and digestion.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

always does this effectually. It treats the disease instead of the symptoms, and removes the cause, thereby making a cure.

Mrs. E. J. ROWELL, No. 11 Quincy St., Medford, Mass., says that her mother has been cured of Scrofula, by the use of four bottles of S. S. S., after having had much other treatment, and being reduced to quite a low condition of health, as it was thought she could not live.

Asthma Cured.

The mere fact that Bergen's Asthma Cure is a positive specific for Asthma and Hay Fever is sufficient to at once attract the attention of all sufferers as well as to call forth the admiration of the scientific world.

We naturally feel proud of the fact that we are able to present to suffering humanity a remedy so full of merit, at the same time devoid of all objectionable features, being applicable to all cases.

For Bronchitis, Cough and lagging Consumption this medicine has no equal.

This medicine is cheaper, surer and safer than any other.

Can You Believe It?

Unscrupulous manufacturers of medicines are offering to supply the retail druggists with an article put up in RED wrapper, almost identical in general appearance, and closely assimilated in every detail to

Carter's LITTLE LIVER Pills!

We know it is hard to believe, and yet it is true, that every day, persons who ask for CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS, have handed out to them something which looks like C-A-R-T-E-R-'-S, and yet is not.

They are put up in a RED wrappers, and they closely imitate "C-A-R-T-E-R-'-S" in general appearance. But it is a fraud!!!

The unsuspecting purchaser, who wants CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS, because he knows their merit, and is sure of their virtues, goes home with a fraud and imitation in his pocket,

HEED THE WARNING.

Don't be deceived and do not be imposed upon with an imitation of what you want. You want CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS, because you know their value and their merit. THEY NEVER FAIL.

The Bee.

The BEE will give the people all of the news and advertise their wants. Having a circulation much greater than any other Toledo daily paper it is much the best advertising medium. It secures quicker and better returns. Consult your interests by advertising in the BEE when you want anything or have anything to sell.

Parties advertising in these columns and having the answers addressed in care of BEE, will please ask for check to enable them to get their letters, as none will be delivered except on presentation of check. All answers to advertisements should be inclosed in envelopes.

Advertisements of Wants, For Rent, For Sale, Lost, Found, etc., not exceeding four lines (28 words), will be inserted in these columns for 50 cents a week, two weeks $1; one month $2. For one insertion 20 cents, two times 29 cents, three times 35 cents, and four times 40 cents will be charged. Over four lines at proportionate rates, payable in advance. Parties desiring situations will be given three insertions free.

No credit is allowed for advertisements ordered in for a certain number of times and stopped before expiration.
